Off-Track Betting Gets Underway April 8

NEW YORK (AP)—His operation is "finally in the starting gate," and post time is 10 a.m. April 8, the city's only licensed bookmaker says.

The bookie is Howard J. Samuels, the chairman of the city's Off-Track Betting Corporation, who announced an agreement in principle Friday with 20 unions at Roosevelt Raceway that, if formalized in 30 days, will permit the OTB to set up shop after months of delays.

The agreement guarantees that, under the OTB, 90 per cent of the employees who worked at the track in 1969 will be retained, and anyone employed at the end of the 1970 racing season will also be guaranteed work in 1971.

In addition, anyone on the raceway roster on the last day of racing in 1970 will be guaranteed the same number of working days in 1971, 1972 and 1973.

The city has spent $5.5 million on the OTB so far, and Samuels estimates the total cost of starting operations will be less than $20 million. Samuels said there is still a chance the OTB can break even by the end of the current fiscal year on June 30.

Some of Samuels' optimism is based on his belief that the agreement with the Roosevelt employees will serve as a model for similar negotiations with the New York Racing Association, which operates at Aqueduct, Yonkers, Belmont and Saratoga raceways.

The first OTB equipment will be installed Monday, the same day the agreement will be signed. Betting windows at Grand Central Terminal in Manhattan and at a site in Forest Hills, Queens, will take the first bets on April 8 for races held that night.

SAMUELS ... HAPPY ANNOUNCEMENT

ROCKEFELLER ... SAD ADMISSION

$200 Million in Debt, Concedes Rockefeller

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—Governor Rockefeller finally conceded today New York State will end the fiscal year March 31 with a debt of up to $200 million.

The governor's admission backs up warnings for the past several months by state Comptroller Arthur Levitt that tax collections were not keeping up with the $6.27 billion estimated by Rockefeller last year.

"The department of Taxation and Finance estimates that the short-fall could run as high as $200 million," Rockefeller said in a statement.

While the year will end in the red, Rockefeller said the Tax Stabilization Reserve Fund will be used to balance the budget. The fund, established in 1946 for just such emergencies, now contains a balance of $151.2 million.

"We are attempting to hold expenditures to an absolute minimum between now and March 31 in order to either avoid or minimize the need to use these stand-by reserves," Rockefeller said.

"Drastic steps have already been taken to curtail expenditures through vacancy controls and other economies. The decline in projected yield is concentrated primarily in the personal and business income categories and is largely attributable to the failure of the national economy to rebound as vigorously as originally forecast," the governor said.

Just last Tuesday, Levitt warned the state could end the year as much as $300 million in the red. For the state to make ends meet he said, tax collections in March will have to total $1.06 billion.

During March of 1970, tax collections yielded only $760 million.

"Regardless of the steps the state may take to make up this loss in revenue it is almost certain that even the revised estimate will not be met," the Democratic comptroller said.

Levitt noted that the state's major revenue source—the income tax—was running only slightly ahead of last year, while Rockefeller had predicted major growth.

Corporate franchise taxes were running considerably behind last year.

Meanwhile, in Albany, the coordinator of a planned "Public Education Day" rally at the Capitol warned Friday that property owners face school tax increases of up to 20 per cent this year because of inadequate state aid to local districts.

A. Terry Weathers said in a statement that the budget proposed by Gov. Rockefeller falls far short of the state's constitutional obligation to support public education.

Weathers commented in his capacity as chairman of the planning committee for a rally to be held March 24. He also is president of the State School Boards Association.

"School districts will be forced to increase taxes as much as 10 to 20 per cent unless state aid is brought in line with steadily rising costs," Weathers maintained.

Moreover, Weathers said, "the largest single tax increase homeowners will face this year will be the one the governor didn't mention in his budget message—the rise in the local school property tax."

Rockefeller recommended a total appropriation of $2.28 billion in general state aid for public school during 1971-72. This includes a $186-million built-in increase based on the formulas adopted last year.

The planned rally is sponsored by the Educational Conference Board, which is seeking an additional $600 million in state aid for the 1971-72 school year.

$375.5 Thousand for Ulster County If ...

WASHINGTON D.C.

Ulster County's share of the "no strings attached" federal revenue sharing plan will be $375,568 if President Nixon's plan is enacted into law.

Of that amount, $118,828 would go to the City of Kingston, according to announcement made by Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.

According to the congressman, figures released by the Administration for the first year of federal revenue sharing shows that the counties, cities, towns and villages in the 28th Congressional District would receive the following amounts from New York's estimated share of $534,083,544.

Ellenville Village would receive $16,709; New Paltz Village, $18,015; Saugerties Village, $13,511; Esopus, $12,467; Hurley, $5,417; Lloyd, $13,380; Marlborough, $7,245; Marlborough, $13,119; Town of New Paltz, $10,182; Plattekill, $3,720; Rochester, $9,334; Rosendale, $7,571; Town of Saugerties, $10,247; Shawangunk, $7,441; Town of Ulster, $17,558; Wawarsing, $32,986 and Town of Woodstock, $10,770.

The total share for the 28th District amounts to $2,432,835 with varying amounts going to the counties of Columbia, Delaware, Dutchess, Greene, Montgomery, Otsego, Schoharie and Sullivan as well as Ulster.

Meanwhile, Rep. Fish has been named to the Presidential Task Force being formed to explain President Nixon's federal revenue sharing proposal and other features of the President's proposals contained in his State of the Union message.

The Task Force is made up of 16 teams of members of the House of Representatives, who will tour the country between the end of March and the middle of the summer to explain President Nixon's proposals outlined in his State of the Union message.

The purpose of the Task Force will be to explain in detail revenue sharing, reorganization of the executive branch of the federal government, and other proposals President Nixon designated as the "New Revolution."

Congressman Fish said the purpose of the Task Force is purely educational. "The ideas set forth by President Nixon in his State of the Union message are indeed revolutionary in many aspects."

"There is no doubt that bold and determined efforts must be made by the Administration and the Congress to meet the problems facing every city, town and state as well as the national government. Such proposals are revenue sharing and reorganization of the executive branch of the government will have an impact on every citizen. It is our job to make sure that the people understand exactly what it will mean to them to have these programs enacted," Congressman Fish said.

"We, the members of the panels who will tour the nation to explain the programs, feel this is a service we owe not only to our own constituents but to all the people. Too often, individual citizens are not fully informed of proposals being discussed in Congress, many of which are highly technical."

"The Task Force will supplement the reports of the news media so that the people will have an opportunity to get all aspects of the program and be able to make a judgment on the President's programs fortified with all the facts, pro and con," Congressman Fish explained.

Author Praises Sojourner Truth As 'Woman for All Seasons'

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ Sojourner Truth, the one-time Ulster County slave who became one of 19th century America's most prominent abolitionists and human rights advocates, is not commonly listed as one of this nation's heroes, and to Phyl Garland, New York editor of Ebony magazine, is symbolic of what she calls "the two sides of history."

Miss Garland, speaking at the dedication of the Sojourner Truth Library at State University College, New Paltz, Friday, said America has one side of its history, one dealing with the nation's triumphs, generally taught in schools. But the other side, which Miss Garland said was "rooted in the unfulfilled promises of the land," is available only to scholars. Sojourner Truth belongs to the second side.

"It is too commonly assumed that the black man was just here," said Miss Garland. She contends that black craftsmen, inventors, writers, explorers, and even cowboys have been largely ignored by history.

American prosperity was achieved, said Miss Garland, because "a portion of the country worked without a paycheck for 250 years."

Addressing herself to Sojourner Truth, Miss Garland called her "a woman for all seasons." She said Sojourner Truth was a particularly important figure today because many of the causes for which she protested are valid concerns in the present age. Equal rights for blacks and women are two of the burning issues of the day, Miss Garland noted.

It is important to honor Sojourner Truth because "she had the courage to stand up and try to change the world, with nothing but her own determination," Miss Garland said.

Stating the future depends on knowing and getting along with other peoples, Miss Garland said in closing, "Truth will help to set all of us free."

The invocation for the dedication ceremony, which was opened by the college librarian Richard J. Shepherd, was delivered by the Rev. Harold F. Schadewald, pastor of the Hurley Reformed Church. Sojourner Truth was born in Hurley.

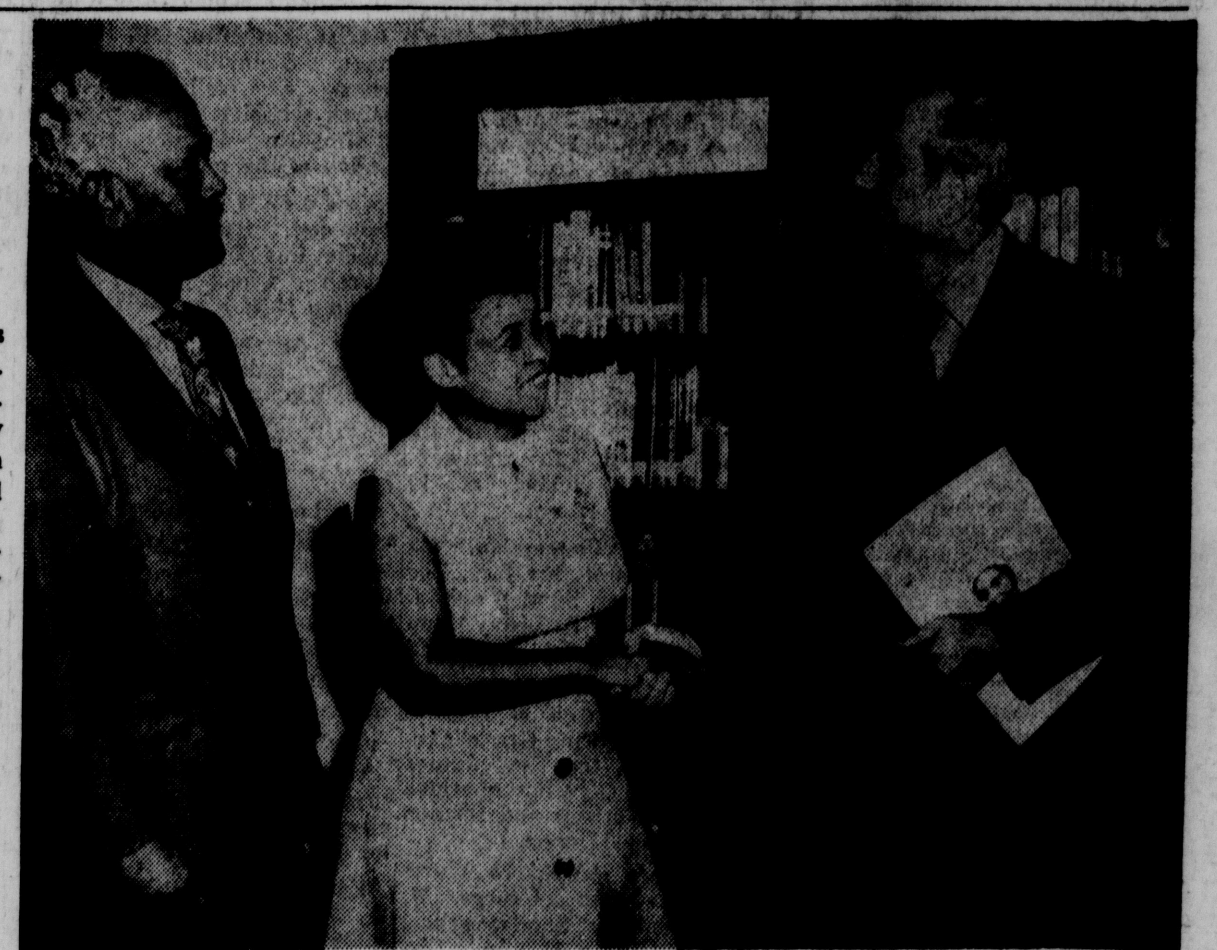

A dramatic reading of a speech Sojourner Truth made at a women's rights conference in Akron, Ohio, in 1851 was delivered by Louise de Cormier.

College President John J. Neumaier read congratulatory telegrams from Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-28th) and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. Dr. James S. Smoot, vice-chancellor for University-wide Services of the State of New York, formally turned the building over to Neumaier and Shepherd.

The benediction was delivered by the Rev. John H. Gilmore, pastor of the Riverside Baptist Church of Kingston.

Present at the ceremony were delegations from the Ulster County Legislature, the Collegé Council, the Town of New Paltz, the New Paltz School Board, the Kingston School Board, the state department of education, and the college's student body and alumni association.

Pigeons, Pollution Liven Legislator Meeting

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Pigeons and pollution produced lively and controversial conversation Thursday at the afternoon session of the County Legislature.

The merits of pigeon sterilization were debated by proponent Harry M. Thayer and James Forbes of the U.S. Wildlife Service while local sportsman, Frederick Faerber took issue with the proposal. William Meyer, president of the Ulster County Federation of Sportsmen's Club, gave conditional approval to the county's proposal to limit pigeon population. The matter of pollution came up for discussion when two women residents of Barclay Heights, Saugerties, pleaded that they could "not hold out" until a sewer system is available in their residential area.

The pigeon problem and the proposed use of Ornitol, a commercial product which sterilizes the pigeons when consumed under prescribed procedures, was discussed at great length with Forbes calling the method "safe, efficient and humane." He said that field tests have been made in a number of states and that Bangor, Me. had undertaken a successful program and had reduced its pigeon population from 2,500 to 300 in three years.

Not so, said Faerber, who said he had contacted officials in Bangor who told him that they had controlled the pigeon population for awhile, but "they are right back where they started."

Faerber said he felt the plan is costly and that it would have to be a continuing program in view of the pigeon mortality rate.

Forbes disagreed, saying the cost would lessen with the years.

Meyer said he was opposed to the feeding of Ornitol to pigeons outside of Kingston but felt that if such feeding were limited to the city, the federated Sportsmen would approve the plan.

Forbes explained that the product is non-toxic, has no sterilizing effect on mammals.

Forbes also explained that the feeding of the pigeons would be at rooftop level in the city and that pheasants and blue-jays, who are also subject to sterilization, feed at ground level.

Faerber produced literature substantiating his argument and showed letters of protest from various sportsmen's clubs and from Mrs. Daniel Smiley, conservationist, and others.

"Let the 4-H and Boy Scouts trap them," Faerber suggested, adding that a 15-cent bounty might prove appealing.

Thayer explained that trapping pigeons in the past was unsuccessful.

Speaking for the Barclay Heights residents, several of whom also attended the meeting were Mrs. Martha Durham and Mrs. Meredith Hughes.

Mrs. Durham told the Legislators that "a very critical situation" exists in their area and that "we need some type of immediate aid to help solve it until sanitary sewers can be installed."

She said the residents feel that the Health Department, the developers and members of the town board were well aware that the land in question was not suitable for individual subsurface sewerage systems, due to the high water table caused by an underlying layer of clay and rock.

She said the situation has caused much financial hardship and mental anxiety on the part of the families in the area.

"In our opinion," Mrs. Durham continued, "the lack of action when it was needed constituted negligence and dereliction of duty of both the town officials and the Ulster County Department of Health."

Mrs. Hughes presented what she called "positive proof" of "polluted water lying in our streets, yards and basements."

She spoke of overflowing toilets, backed up drain fields and stench in the air, drowned furnaces, sewage forced up through the tops of septic tanks into lawns, cracked floors and yearly pumping out of septic tanks, cellars and leaching fields.

She too, attacked the governmental agencies involved saying, "If they knew that the water table was rising why have more houses and apartments been permitted without communal sewerage?"

At the evening session of the Legislature Melvin Mones, (R-City), chairman of the Public Health Committee, said that everyone is in sympathy with the problem adding, "this body has not been negligent... the Health Department has been working with you (the residents) and recommendations have been made and action has been taken."

He indicated that all that can be done is being done until such time as sewers are installed.

Grassi, Priest Back Again On Rosendale GOP Ballot

ROSENDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Ever, when the Supreme Court upheld alleged inadequate certificates of authorization. The Appellate Division ruled yesterday, however, that Grassi's name may also appear on the Republican line and that Priest's name may also appear on the Conservative line. Both Grassi and Priest were in Albany recently, and they met with State Senator Jay P. Rolison and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell to discuss Governor Rockefeller's budget and "issues important to the Village of Rosendale." In addition to discussing recommended cuts in Rockefeller's proposed budget, Grassi and Priest reviewed the water supply problem for the Village. Bell is vice chairman of the Temporary Commission on the Water Supply Needs of Southwestern New York. Rolison also serves on that committee. Both Rolison and Bell commented that "it has been a pleasure working with Mayor Grassi in the last year" and that they look forward to working with him and Priest "following their election next Tuesday." Grassi, running for re-election against Democrat Joseph Reid, became the first Conservative elected as Mayor in New York State when he narrowly defeated Reid last March.

Rockwell Kent Dead at 89, Was Artist, Philosopher

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (UPI) — Rockwell Kent, the American artist as well known around the world for his political philosophy as for his famous paintings, died today at the age of 89.

Kent entered Physicians Hospital March 2. He had reportedly suffered a series of strokes recently, but the cause of death was not disclosed. Kent was the first living American artist honored with a Soviet exhibition. His works hang in the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Art Institute in Chicago.

In 1967 he received the Lenin Peace Prize and stirred controversy by donating $10,000 of the $28,000 prize to a fund for wives and children of the Viet Cong.

He said at the time that he made the contribution because he was "deeply outraged" at American involvement in the Indochina War.

In the late 1940s, he was called before the House Un-American Activities Committee because of his association with what the committee branded a Communist-front organization. He told the committee he was a Socialist, but not a Communist.

The artist, who resided at Au Sable Forks, N.Y., has often been confused over the years with artist Norman Rockwell who's famed for his Saturday Evening Post covers.

President of Turkey Forming New Government

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — President Cevdet Sunay began forming a new government today after Premier Suleyman Demirel and his cabinet resigned to avoid a military takeover.

The four generals who maneuvered Demirel's fall pulled off the coup d'etat by issuing a communique accusing the premier's Justice party of letting the nation drift into anarchy.

Sunay will meet with leaders of Turkey's political parties Sunday. It is believed he will try to form a coalition government headed by an independent acceptable to the military. The generals said the new government must have enough

Mohawk Mechanics Back to Work Monday

UTICA, N.Y. (UPI) — Mohawk Airlines is bringing its mechanics back to work starting Monday, but declines comment on whether a settlement is near in the five-month-old pilots' strike.

The back-to-work agreement for nearly 600 mechanics and warehousemen was announced Friday, while contract talks in Washington with the striking pilots were recessed for the weekend.

A company spokesman said the move "does not necessarily" indicate any progress toward agreement with the 400 striking pilots.

"Mohawk remains unwilling to speculate on the progress of negotiations," he said. The talks resume Monday.

The Air Line Pilots Association similarly declined comment. The ALPA spokesman said, however, there would be no problem with the mechanics returning since, even if ALPA were picketing, the Railway Labor Act virtually prohibits one transportation union from honoring another's picket lines.

Under the back-to-work agreement, some 575 workers will be gradually recalled to work, beginning Monday, to do both required maintenance and work preparatory to resuming Mohawk's service throughout the Northeast.

The accord was reached by William Scher, an assistant general chairman of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, (IAM) and James Hanretta, Mohawk's vice president for maintenance.

"This agreement," Hanretta said, "ensures the availability of skilled workers to get our fleet into the air at the earliest possible date after settlement of the current pilots' strike."

No estimate was available on the number of men to be recalled. Most of them are based at Utica, Syracuse, Albany, Rochester, and Buffalo, N.Y. and Newark and Boston.

Meanwhile, the company spokesman said an announcement on the company's financial problems is possible Monday, when another deadline for the company's senior lenders expires.

The spokesman reiterated that no merger talks with other airlines "are underway at this time."

Freak Accident Kills Driver Near Newburgh

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (UPI) — A New Monmouth, N.J., truck driver was killed in a freak accident Friday night as he was loading cars onto a trailer destined for Long Island.

Police said Thomas H. Dering, 36, was crushed to death in suburban New Windsor between the cab of a pickup truck and the upper ramp when its brakes apparently slipped.

Dering had been sitting on the truck cab to fasten chains on cars on the upper ramp, police theorized.

Dering worked for Nu Car Carrier Import Division of Newark. His address was given as 13 Maplewood Dr., New Monmouth.

Welfare at Crisis Point

From a cloud no bigger than a man's hand a few years ago, the cost of welfare programs on both a state and federal level has ballooned into a gigantic dark thing hovering over the nation.

The rise in welfare rolls not only continues to go up, the rate of increase is accelerating.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare reports that in November, the latest month for which the full figures are available, there was an unprecedented increase of 282,000 recipients of Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC).

The total was swollen somewhat because it included thousands of families of striking General Motors workers. Even so, November was the fourth straight month that AFDC rolls climbed by more than 200,000.

Two years ago, the number of Americans on AFDC was rising at the rate of one million annually. In 1970 it was two million annually. If the October-November rate were to be maintained, it would leap to 3.4 million annually.

In any event, as of last November, a total of 9.4 million men, women and children were enrolled in AFDC.

The welfare situation has reached the crisis point in a number of states, precisely those which should be the wealthiest and most prosperous.

Governor Rockefeller is considering drastic changes to curb welfare, which he is expected to present to the Legislature. The measure would cut the influx of welfare recipients into the state and require able-bodied persons on welfare to accept employment in private industry or state-created jobs. Also being considered is the strict enforcement of the law that requires a welfare recipient to register with the local State Department of Labor employment agency for job placement and to lose his welfare benefits if he refuses a job. In the proposed state budget for the fiscal year beginning April 1, welfare is up 40 per cent to $1.219 billion.

In Illinois, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie estimates that increasing costs of the state's public aid programs will consume more than four-fifths of the growth in revenues from all sources in the coming fiscal year.

"The existing system of public welfare is a social and financial disaster," he commented as he presented a $1.12-billion welfare budget for fiscal 1972, $261 million higher than that for 1971.

During the past two years, we have been able to live with this crisis in Illinois," says Ogilvie. "But this runaway growth will catch up with us in 1972."

Gov. Ronald Reagan calls California's welfare system "a $3-billion moral and administrative disaster." However, his proposed reform plan, which would cut back a variety of free services, make it tougher to get on welfare and require recipients to work in public work projects, is expected to get nowhere in a legislature controlled by the opposition party.

Welfare is not only a political issue but an emotional one. Human beings are involved. Faced with agonizing choices or bankruptcy, state leaders increasingly look to the federal government, that fount of inexhaustible wealth, to take the welfare albatross from around their necks, or at least to carry more of the burden.

But proposals that the federal government take over responsibility for all public aid, a shift which would be of greatest benefit to the industrial states, have little support among small-state congressmen. And as it is, the accelerating increase in aid to recipients may already have thrown the welfare column of President Nixon's estimate 1972 budget out of kilter by as much as $1.5 billion.

In the meantime, up and up welfare goes, and where it will stop—or how to stop it—nobody knows.

David Lawrence Says Terrorism Exists in Various Forms Around the World

WASHINGTON — Although governments may not like to talk about it, they are facing an increasing peril in the terrorism involving kidnappings of prominent officials and diplomats which have become commonplace. No international conference has brought an answer, nor have individual governments in Latin America or on any continent found that terrorist activities can be stopped just by the paying of ransoms.

The detention of four American soldiers, seized by a Turkish "liberation" group, is one of the few incidents that has not been prolonged. But in another part of the world this was followed almost immediately by the kidnapping of the attorney general of Uruguay. The same tactic of terrorism appears in country after country.

It is recognized that terrorists usually are left-wingers and revolutionaries who try to capitalize on the discontent in their respective countries. The episodes emphasize the absence of any adequate police power to deal with the small groups which abduct well-known persons, particularly foreigners, and hold them for ransom. It is often insisted that other members of the rebel organizations who have been previously imprisoned should be released as the price of letting the kidnapped individuals go free.

The trouble has emerged repeatedly in a number of countries in Latin America. While the demand for ransom has been for the most part resisted, there have been some instances where it has been paid.

One of the weaknesses in the situation is the unfamiliarity in many capitals of the world with systems of detection that could lead to the capture of the kidnappers. The major powers could be of help in training the law-enforcement agencies of the smaller nations, the governments of which may ultimately crumble unless the terrorists — really revolutionaries — are caught and punished.

Terrorism exists in various forms throughout the world. Bombings by dissident groups are reported nearly everywhere. In the United States, the damage from such crimes has been growing steadily. In 1970, there were 1,096 bombings, more than double the previous year. The rise continues, with 79 explosions in January, compared with 51 in the same month a year ago. Even the Capitol building was struck on March 1. Security measures are being tightened, and the law-enforcement mechanism is rapidly being enlarged. The belief is that ways will be found eventually to detect many of the perpetrators of the bombings.

The subject has become one of major importance in every country. While the Organization of American States has discussed the problem, no constructive action has been taken. If terrorism continues and expands, the smaller nations will need the financial help of the larger countries in order to deal with such tactics.

Where social and economic conditions have produced unrest, there is every reason for more attention to be given to the reforms that will reduce the discontent which exists. But in several countries the rebels are not seeking merely social and economic reform. They are bent on overthrowing governments or the "establishment."

Hardly any countries have adequately trained forces to deal with terrorist groups. Each country has been struggling with the problem by itself, but the time may not be far off when the Organization of American States, for example, will have to reconvene to consider whether united action will have to be taken in Latin America. For its members now are in constant turmoil and the victims of disorder — with kidnappings, bombings and other forms of terrorism amounting to guerrilla warfare.

In the United States, a congressional committee has just been given a report from the general services administration which says that since 1969 there have been 51 actual or attempted bombings and 918 bombing threats at the 10,000 buildings in its jurisdiction. Approximately 8 million dollars voted by Congress last year is being used to hire a nd train 1,777 additional guards, but this means only two guards per building. These facts indicate the problem of the government in furnishing security. It will require more guards, better technical devices and more personnel in the law-enforcement agencies themselves.

There is much talk about peace in the world, but internal peace is growing more and more difficult to maintain each day.

The Sky's the Limit — Trouble Comes Near the Ground

Commercial airline accidents are down to a point where flying a jet is safer than driving a car. It could come down a little more if the Federal Aviation Administration would face the problem of the private plane and its Sunday pilot. Commercial and private aircraft must be separated by definite flight paths and altitudes.

I have been flying since 1929 and I have seen American aircraft come a long, long way. I recall white beacons at night, shining on the ground several miles apart, to guide the pilot from, say, Richmond, Virginia, to Charlotte, North Carolina. If a haze closed over the ground, the skipper wasn't quite sure whether he was flying rightside up or upside down. In my opinion, the best pilot between that age and this is Dick Merrill, of Eastern Airlines. In 1934, I was aboard a Curtiss Condor he was flying and he grounded the plane at Washington en route to Florida. "Why?" I asked. "Because it's getting dark," he said, "and the farmers in Virginia go to bed early. That means lights out."

He valued his own life, as all good pilots do. In those days, the sky was so free of planes that, hearing one everybody stopped to look up. Passengers in those days were afraid that the engines might catch fire. Today, with jets, they are afraid that the fire will go out.

Accidents are so few that they are practically confined to the first 90 seconds of flight, and the last 90. If there is going to be trouble, look for it in that time span. In the last decade, we have had 223 air collisions, and this is the nub of the 1971 problem.

The National Transportation Safety Board, which has made studies of these matters, states that 98 per cent of these collisions involved privately-owned planes. This, I can assure you, is a sensitive subject to private pilots, who write intemperate letters to columnists.

In North Carolina, a 727 jet was taking off in clear air and a private plane came in from the left side and slammed into the middle of the jet. Bodies were strewn all over a highway, a filling station, and nearby woods. The private pilot took a lot of people with him.

Coming westbound into O'Hare at Chicago, I sat in the jump seat behind the captain. On takeoff or approach, I never speak to a pilot. He was gray-haired, a competent veteran. We both looked out the window on the left and saw a small plane arc under the belly. I sighed. "I live in Chicago," he said. "I have my own Aeronca."

He shook his head. "I had the wife and one kid with me. I called O'Hare for landing instructions and got them. On the way down, I was caught in the jet exhaust from the plane in front, and a DC-8 behind me was almost walking into my tail. I got permission to get the hell out of there fast."

At Kennedy, I got off an airliner and boarded a private craft to take me to New Jersey. The pilot got a waveoff behind an intercontinental jet. He started down the runway and, as he lifted off, was caught in the turbulence of the big plane. We bounced 10 feet off the grass and a square red light began to shine off the instrument panel. "Stalling Speed," it said.

My wife prayed us out of that one. The problem with private aircraft is that they are smaller, slower and often cannot be picked up by airport radar. If a jet is coming in at 100 knots, and a private plane ahead is descending at 50 knots, somebody is going to have to do something quickly.

Also, if the Sunday pilot desires to make a party of his flight, he can have drinks aboard. If he has a few, he is a much greater menace than the driver who drinks, because the happy, fuzzy-eyed pilot is going to kill everybody.

My argument is not intended to stifle private aviation. Without it, we would not have commercial pilots. They must start somewhere. I would like to see more private planes, more pilots. But the FAA is going to have to lay out flight paths and altitudes separating the little ones from the big jets.

The jet use of lower altitudes is minimal in time. They are economical in use only at 24,000 feet and above. However, the captain must take off from the ground, he must pass through lower areas where small planes abound and, when he approaches a big airport, the private plane has as much right as the jet to use the facilities.

The problem is precisely there — the first 90 seconds, and the last. In 10 years, collisions have accounted for 528 deaths. That comes to about 53 a year. It's a small number indeed.

I don't want to be one of them...

McGovern Bets His Vietnam
War Stand Will Help Him

BRUCE BLOSSAT
WASHINGTON (NEA) —

Sen. George McGovern's presidential candidacy is really rooted in his personal wager that American voters will depart from usual pattern and take a man not in the middle of the road. Not many appraisers would join him in that bet.

On occasion he insists he is not as liberal as painted, arguing that such a person could not win repeatedly in conservative South Dakota as he has done.

Mostly, however, McGovern bangs away on his antiwar themes with a fervor sure to keep him off to the side. In New Hampshire, indeed, he voiced near-contempt for the middle of the road.

"The center of the road is rather crowded with people who don't want to face the problems of this country squarely. But if we're going to move with the kind of dispatch these problems call for, we're not going to do it by piling on top of each other in the center of the road. That may lead to a dead-end rather than progress."

Key in the senator's wager about the country's mood is his evident belief the war will work for him, that President Nixon's policy of fighting while withdrawing from Vietnam will displease millions of voters and turn them McGovern's way — past rival Sen. Edmund Muskie.

Perhaps, given McGovern's outrage and his long record of open protest, he can do no other. In any event, he seems to be lifting his argument to higher and higher pitch.

Recently, he branded U.S. air assaults as the "massive bombardment we're carrying out all across the face of Indochina," and added:

"I wonder if it's possible to find an area (of Indochina) that doesn't have a bomb crater in it."

Since there are substantial parts of the two Vietnams, Laos and Cambodia that have never taken a single bomb (because it would be pointless even from the viewpoint of a bombing enthusiast), you have to give McGovern full literary license to accept this comment.

The South Dakotan describes our participation in the Vietnam war as the "worst disaster in the history of this country." Our own terrible internal conflict of 1861-65, which produced 500,000 military deaths and social dislocations that have lasted more than a century, just might by rated worse.

At another point, McGovern said of Indochina: "I don't know if there is anything left — we've destroyed so much."

Even the most dovish on-the-scene observer in Southeast Asia would not venture so sweeping a charge. It is not supportable by evidence. Large areas have seen neither air nor ground combat.

McGovern's driving emotion about the war also causes him to break the restraints he says he accepts on criticism of his fellow Democrats — most particularly the front-running Muskie.

The Maine senator is generally portrayed as a middle-roader. So McGovern's New Hampshire blast at the center had the sound of an attack upon his most difficult rival.

The jabs usually are attack upon his most difficult generally portrayed as a middle-roader. So McGovern's New Hampshire blast at the center had the sound of an attack upon his most difficult rival.

"I've been gratified that Senator Muskie, who a couple of years ago was defending the administration policy on Vietnam, has now become..."

Maybe McGovern, for whom emotional criticism may be a "matter of style" — meaning other way to play. Yet his probably necessary wager that war-weary voters (especially the young) will come over to him looks weak. Polls and surveys still rate him low — even unmentioned.

Rev. Lester Kinsolving

Inside Religion

JEFFERSON CITY, Tenn. We now have "folk games" at Carson Newman," noted Sheridan Barker, editor of the student newspaper at this small Southern Baptist college 30 miles east of Knoxville.

"Folk games?" Was this a euphemism for community skiny - dipping? "Feelie" parties or "Anatomy-by-braille"? Outright campus orgies?

"Folk games really means co-educational square dancing," explained Barker, "only we can't call it dancing."

For Carson Newman College is owned and substantially subsidized ($405,933 last year) by the Tennessee Baptist Convention (TBC)—which recently voted to force the trustees to reinstitute a 119-year-old prohibition of dancing on campus.

Carson Newman's trustees had for 13 months lifted the dance ban, in view of the nearly unanimous feelings of students, faculty and parents. Moreover, a similar dance ban had been rescinded more than a decade ago at another Baptist college, Wake Forest, in nearby North Carolina.

Carson Newman, a scholastically respectable college of 3,000 has been accredited since 1928, having been founded in 1849 as The Mossy Creek Missionary Baptist Seminary. This title was phased out (happily for contemporary students) in view of financial generosity of the late Messrs. J. H. Carson and W. C. Newman.

Yet a majority of the TBC appears piously dedicated to keeping Carson Newman mossy. In a scenario which could have been produced by 14th Century Fox, the Convention was punctuated by shouts of "If it was wrong for 119 years it's wrong now!" The Rev. John Buell of Knoxville zealously informed the Convention:

"Any man who says he can dance and keep his thoughts pure is less than a man or he is a liar!"

Without challenging this notable contention that all dancing women are erotic enough to provoke "impure" thoughts from all real men, student vice president Steve Petty noted that Christ said nothing against dancing. (This was understandable, since Jesus' ancestor, King David, had "danced before the Lord with all his might"—II Samuel 6:14—and when this was criticized by Michal she was cursed with childlessness.)

If Jesus said nothing against dancing, the Natl. Assn. of Baptists in nearby Morristown had plenty to say. Dancing, the Association resolved, is "Social behavior that is worldly in nature, sinful in character and detrimental to all that is truly righteous and Godly."

Added Alpha Baptist pastor J. W. Rayburn, "Any immoral act after the dance is a result of the dance."

This stimulating contention was substantiated by Mrs. James G. Kelly of Oak Ridge, who explained that "the reason Baptists don't believe in dancing is that one good Baptist (John The) preacher got his head cut off at a shindig once."

While none of even the most pulchritudinous of Carson Newman's coeds has thus far ventured to perform Salome's seven-veil dance act, the student body does hold dances—in the American Legion Hall at first, but because that was too small in a local roller skating rink (which is now owned by the TBC).

Student body president Robert Mayfield notes that "Our Christian college is being threatened by those who contribute one fourth of our financial support. . . . Is dancing any more sinful now that those who went to high school proms are at Carson Newman? At least with dancing on campus you are assured they will be properly chaperoned."

Alumnus Ron Meisburg, a Louisville school teacher wrote that "this hurts the diploma I have" and expressed his "utter disgust with the tactics employed by the TBC to badger the college into submission."

In Nashville prominent Baptist layman Melvin Harris observes that "The whole Baptist cause has been subjected to public ridicule. . . . At a time of crisis in many areas, when young people are questioning values and seeking truth, we appear particularly ridiculous. . . ."

But dancing is apparently regarded as sufficiently wicked for 100 Tennessee Baptist churches to withhold their financial contributions as long as it was allowed on the Carson Newman campus.

The college's embattled President John Fincher remarks wistfully: "If the kids can't dance here they'll go some place where they can. . . . It's amazing how much sin you can imagine if you have a good enough imagination."

Those few smudged words on that scrap of paper sparked within him a keen desire to learn, a desire which ultimately led him to become a world-famous writer and lecturer who touched the lives of untold millions of people around the world.

The piece of paper was a page torn from a book about Joan of Arc. The boy knew nothing about Joan of Arc; he had never even heard of her. But he was so captivated by that single page from her story that he began to ferret out every bit of information about her that he could find.

He became a newspaper man, then a steamboat pilot on the Mississippi River and eventually a world-renowned writer and lecturer. He traveled widely and met many influential people and wrote many books but he never lost his interest in the Maid of Orleans. Some 50 years had passed after he found that scrap of paper, when he sat down and wrote a book called "The Recollections of Joan of Arc." Of course, he is known to the world as Mark Twain. One of his biographers wrote that finding that page about Joan of Arc awakened his interest in all history and fired him with a passion that became, "The largest feature of his intellectual life and remained with him until his very last day on earth."

The page from Joan of Arc didn't make Mark Twain a genius; it didn't give him any special abilities. He already had the seeds of great ability hidden within himself. The paper merely awakened his interest and inspired him to apply himself. It motivated him to develop and use his native resources for the good of himself, his family and millions of other people in the world.

Herein lies one of the little recognized keys to personal fulfillment, self-motivation. All of us have the seeds of greater ability hidden deeply within ourselves, waiting to be discovered, waiting to be developed and put to good use. And when we can find that certain something that will spark our interest, that key to self motivation, it is safe to say that we shall come closer to living up to our true potential.

A Scrap of Paper

On a blustery afternoon in the year 1850, a lad of fifteen casually walked down a dusty street in the village of Hannibal, Missouri. As he trudged aimlessly along, a gust of wind blew a crumpled scrap of paper into his path. He stooped to pick it up and began to read it as he walked along. Little did he realize that at that very moment his destiny was being cast by that chance occurrence.

Those few smudged words on that scrap of paper sparked within him a keen desire to learn, a desire which ultimately led him to become a world-famous writer and lecturer who touched the lives of untold millions of people around the world.

KINGSTON

The Student Council at Kingston High School has had some busy weeks recently what with Winter Carnival and UN Model Conference selections.

Winter Carnival came off with flying colors last Saturday. More than 40 booths were in operation for the enjoyment of the approximately 5,000 patrons who attended either the afternoon or evening programs. Reports are the financial aspects were most successful.

Jane McElrath was crowned Queen and Bill Scafidi King of Winter Carnival. They reigned at the evening program when the newly reorganized group, Raw, played for dancing.

Award winners were Edwin Myers and Bette Niebling, both of Kingston, first; Susan Gromoll, Kingston, Sue Eckert, Kingston, Frank Tiano, Glasco, Bonnie Hunter, New Paltz and Vickery McDowell, Kingston.

Five students left this Friday for Harvard University where they will participate in the UN Model Conference with representatives from 50 schools in New York, New England, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Selected to represent the KHS Student Council at the three day session are Craig Sonneberg, William Scafidi Jr., Dale Elmemendorf, Joel Heimrich and Joel Feldman. Alternates were John Fodor, William More and Stephen Brodhead.

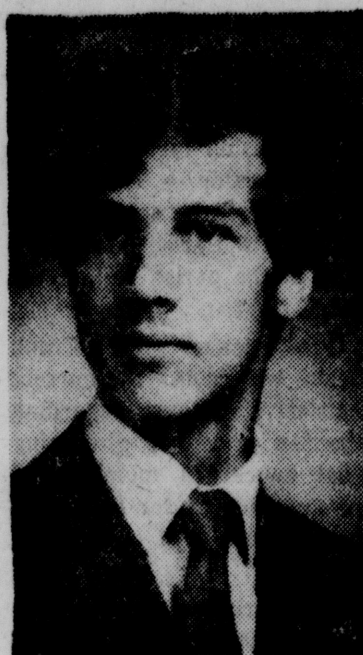

Selection was based on research carried out by the many students who participated. The KHS delegation will act as representatives of the Philippines, voting on all resolutions from that republic's expected stand.

Michael O'Hara served as general chairman of the UN weekend. Students are accompanied by William A. Scafidi, vice principal of KHS.

Another KHS event is the annual band concert to be presented next Friday 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets are available now from any band member or at the door the night of the concert.

Youth in the News

We find their youth gives them insights that we sometimes lack, since they act as both peers and instructors," Dr. Robert Foulke, chairman of the Skidmore English Department said in evaluating the program.

FOR THE BIRDS

Are you a bird watcher? They are fascinating, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist.

Even with winter nearing its end, many families set up bird feeders to prepare for their visitors. Sunflower seeds are standard fare, along with millet for the smaller birds, and suet for nuthatches and woodpeckers. Also attractive to the bark gleaning birds are small wire baskets containing red peanuts, or a mixture of cooking grease and peanut butter smeared on the tree trunk.

All of these feeders are attractive to Fox Squirrels, Gray Squirrels and chipmunks. There is no sure-fire way to keep these hoarders out of your feeders, but some things help. At the Cornell Laboratory of Ornithology, feeders are placed in open areas at least 10 feet from overhanging tree limbs and shrubs. This prevents squirrels from dropping down from above. To prevent them from climbing up a feeder, steel posts may be used. These are most effective if used in conjunction with an inverted 24 inch tin cone about half way up the post. Squirrels have difficulty climbing around the tin.

Most of us find the squirrels so smart that we give up sooner or later and let them feed at will anyway.

If you have an interest in birds, winter is the time to think of bird feeding. Once you begin putting out food, however, you must continue the practice. Birds will become dependent upon this source and may starve if their source of food is removed. I would like to pass on a recipe for a cooked bird food.

2 parts ground suet
2 parts corn meal
2 parts sugar
1 part flour
Water

Mix, add water (not over 1/2 par), and cook in a double boiler about 25 minutes, (cook like mush). Pour into well greased loaf pan, allow to cool and harden, then cut in chunks. Use as needed in your bird feeder.

The Estelle & Alfonso Performers' Club has been invited by the Masonic Temple, Rondout Lodge 343 F&AM, to entertain for a special Ladies Night on Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Kingston. A variety show has been planned to include all types of dance, pantomime, baton routines and songs. Well known throughout Dutchess County for its many talent contributions at local Civic and charity events, The Performers' Club has also established a reputation outside of the State. The club annually appears at the famous amusement center, Lake Compounce in Bristol, Conn. They have performed at the Steel Pier in Atlantic City, The New York World's Fair, Expo '67 in Montreal, Canada and the Dutchess County Fair. Television appearances have included the famed "Ed Sullivan T.V. Show" on CBS; "Hullabaloo" with Jerry Lewis on NBC; monthly appearances on WRGB and Cablevision 12. Several of the members have appeared on television commercials for national products.

Performer's Club entertainers include: Kim Biscardi, Lori Biscardi,

The preliminaries for the Estelle & Alfonso Olympics, which is a benefit for the Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet

Company, have just been completed in the acrobatic and gymnastic portion. From over one hundred contestants, and after many weeks of tryouts, the six top scorers were selected. These six acrobats will compete for the Gold, Silver and Bronze medals at Poughkeepsie High School on Sunday afternoon, Mar. 14th from 2 to 4 p.m. before a panel of local leading physical educators who will select the winners. All contestants, regardless of points scored during the preliminaries, enter the competition on a par. They must originate their own two minute routine employing their best stunts in a flowing, well-executed manner. Their routines will be scored by each judge according to degree of difficulty, execution, form, style and poise. The score sheets are then tabulated to find the winners. The winners will be presented the honor medals by Poughkeepsie officials.

The Ancient Onion

The onion, of eastern origin, has been known and cultivated as a food since the earliest period of history. It is mentioned in the Bible as one of the things the Israelites longed for when they were in the wilderness. The Egyptians used onions as a staple for the workers on the pyramids. The onion was introduced into the West Indies by the Spanish, and from there, it spread to the Americas where it was grown by the earliest colonists and later by the Indians. Its popularity has been maintained through the ages, and today, a glance through any cookbook reveals few recipes, except for desserts, which do not call for at least a hint of onion.

Red Cross Drive Chairman Lists Leaders for Towns

KINGSTON John J. Darwak, 1971 chairman of March Fund drive for the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross has announced that he will be assisted in the drive by the following town chairmen: Denning, Mrs. Thomas Baloy; Gardiner, Mrs. William Conner Jr.; Hardenburgh, Bowman H. Owen; Marlboro, Ralph Walters; Rochester, Bruce Schoonmaker; Shandaken, Karl Bush; Shawangunk, Mrs. John Sloan; and Wawarsing, Alex Nirenberg. He pointed out that the chapter assisted over 750 servicemen and women and their families during the past year. This assistance ranged from help with emergency communications to advice and counsel with personal problems and financial assistance to a wife when her allotment was delayed. In addition, more than 1,000 persons completed free Red Cross First Aid Courses and approximately 4,000 were awarded certificates for completion of water safety courses. Darwak asked that anyone in the area outside the United Fund of Ulster County who is not contacted through one of the town chairmen or their workers, send a contribution to the Ulster County Chapter, 21 O'Neil Street, Kingston, or to the town chairman where they reside.

Bell on Special Committee, Will Make Review of State Laws

ALBANY Assemblyman H. Clark Bell is among six state legislators who have been named to a Special Assembly Committee to explore the nature and effect of state mandates on local governments.

In announcing the creation of the committee, Speaker Perry B. Duryea noted that the state and its localities are all faced with critical financial problems. "We must seek out every possible means to cut back on unnecessary spending, and make sure that tax money is going where it is most needed," he said.

Duryea pointed out that state mandates currently exist with statutes, department rules and regulations, and also result from court decisions. Numerous provisions set standards, provide exemptions from taxation, set minimum requirements and otherwise impose costs on localities. "Many of these are desirable determinations because they insure fair, uniform treatment to the people of the state," he said. "However, the numerous complaints received by legislators provides evidence enough that a re-examination of these mandates is in order," he speaker said.

"This is the task I have asked the new committee to undertake. I am requesting the committee members to review state laws, rules and regulations, and to bring in recommendations for action during this session," he concluded.

Assemblyman George Farrell of Nassau was appointed chairman of the committee which is also comprised of Charles Henderson of Steuben County, James Emery of Livingston County, Constance Cook of Tompkins County and Lawrence Corbett of Rensselaer, Warren and Washington counties.

WOODSTOCK A preliminary hearing will be held Wednesday for William McCormack, 21, of Box 694, Shokan and John Miles, 19, of 311 Clover Street, West Hurley after their arrest Friday night on a charge of disorderly conduct by Woodstock constables. Both were arraigned before Town of Kingston Justice Robert E. Ferrigan and released on $100 bail.

MEET IN ALBANY — Mayor Carl Grassi of Rosendale and Richard Priest, candidate for Village Trustee met with State Senator Jay P. Rolison and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell in Albany recently to discuss the governor's budget and issues important to Rosendale including the village water supply problem. Left is Rolison, Bell, Grassi and Priest. Grassi is the first Conservative mayor elected in the state with Republican endorsement. Priest was also nominated by Republican-Conservative voters. Both seek election March 16.

KINGSTON ment received from the United at this time to provide scouting for the boys in the hard to reach areas. Special efforts are being made representative for the Aetna Casualty Company in Ulster County with offices in Kingston and Albany. He and his wife, Marilyn and two children, Daniel and Stacy have lived here since he started with Aetna. Johnson has been very active in many worthwhile organizations. He's a member of the board of directors of the American Red Cross, secretary of B'nai B'rith, a member of the Kingston Jaycees and a past Eagle Scout. He comes from a long line of civic minded family members. His grandfather was the first scoutmaster and organizer of a Boy Scout troop or the blind children at the New York School for the Blind. The sustaining membership enrollment campaign is limited to previous supporters of scouting and the families of boys now in the program. It is necessary to supplement the allot-

Dear Abby

Keep Lips Buttoned

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have two sons, married to girls I dearly love, and I hope the feeling is reciprocated.

One son is meticulous in his appearance and the care of his clothes. The other son, while a perfectionist in his work, is very negligent about his personal appearance. His clothes are often in need of pressing, cleaning, buttons, etc.

Don't you think that a wife should systematically go through her husband's wardrobe and keep his clothes in good condition? When my husband was alive, I devoted each Monday morning to this purpose and found him most grateful for my interest.

NON-INTERFERING MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR NON: What you are trying to ask is, "How can I get my daughter-in-law to take better care of my son's wardrobe without damaging our relationship?"

You may not be able to. But since your son is old enough to be married, he's old enough to ask his wife's assistance in keeping his clothes presentable, if indeed he cares about his appearance. If neither he nor his wife care, no matter how many buttons you notice "missing," continue to keep your lip buttoned.

DEAR ABBY: In regard to abortion: Women must learn to say NO to their husbands more often. In fact, everyone must say no to evil. We are now living in a warring, whoring, boring world because we have forgotten God's word. Jesus told us that if a family cannot afford more children they should quit having sex.

I have never married or had sex even tho I have been asked. If a person can say no to evil once, it is a lot easier the next time. Jesus also said, "Love the sinner, but hate the sin." People today have it turned around. They love sin and hate the sinner. If I sound holier than thou it is because Christ has made me holy.

"A SAVED WOMAN" DEAR "SAVED": You insist upon equating sex with sin, and feel that the absence of sex has made you somewhat "holy." Theologians (and indeed Christ Himself) would disagree with you.

DEAR ABBY: They say "time heals all wounds," but this wound of mine has not healed, and it has been 10 years.

A neighbor boy (I'll call him Jim) is the living image of my husband, John. I have a son Jim's age, and they are constantly taken for "twins." John and I have discussed it, and he weakly denies that it is anything more than a coincidence. I know better. A year before Jim's birth there was ugly talk about this neighbor lady and my husband.

The older Jim gets, the more he resembles my husband. There is talk, even now, and I can understand why. I try not to blame anyone, least of all the innocent boy, but it is so difficult for me to have to look at him and members of his family nearly every day.

How can I put this out of my mind? Moving is out of the question. The other family must hear the gossip, too. Don't you think they should move? We were here first.

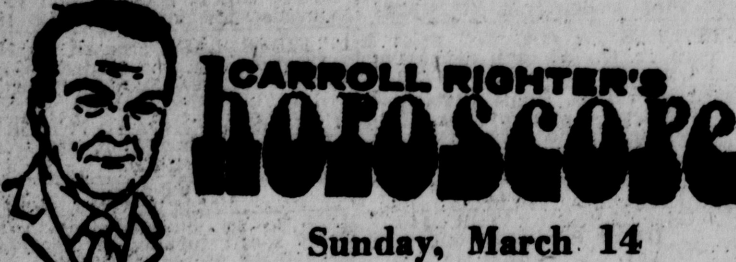

John is a wonderful husband and father to our children. I can't go on this way. Is there a solution?

DEAR TRAPPED: My only suggestion would be for you and your family to move. You say, "It's out of the question." As I see it, it is out of the question for you to remain where you are. It would be well worth any sacrifice you'd have to make in order to relocate.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

(Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 9:25 a.m., WKNY-1490.)

Sunday, March 14

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You find that you can now wind up many of the interesting ideas recently launched, so decide what you can do to get what you want and at the same time please others. Excellent day and evening for entertaining.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Good day to meet with associates and plan future operations more intelligently so that efforts can be better coordinated. Clear up moot points that have been bothering you first. Then dine together.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Adding comforts and toning up surroundings is your best bet today. Those at home are in a very fine mood and will cooperate with you. Arrive at decisions quickly. Save time for taking mate out in evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan to spend time with persons who really please you and with whom you can make agreements for future deals. Developing that gift you have is good, also. Show that you are active and progressive.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Making your abode more colorful, charming pleases those living there, especially renters. Do some entertaining in p.m. that puts everyone in a good mood. Avoid extravagance, though.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Read interesting articles in your paper or magazines that can bring you added income, make you a more interesting and dynamic individual. Meet with person with whom you want to work out some problem intelligently.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Showing that you can be practical even where art is concerned is wise now, or you get the unjust nickname of "Mr. De-Nothing." Make your abode more attractive, so that it expresses your personality.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Spend your time with persons who really like you whom you like and make this a happy and productive day, p.m. Group affairs are just fine for you now. You have been working too hard and too much. Relax.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to gain cherished desires through the auspices of your finest friends who think what a good deal of you. Participate in the kind of amusements you really enjoy. Take that chip off your shoulder.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have some very fine friends and should now contact them so they help you to gain your best aims easily. Concentrating on whatever is of personal nature is most important now. Avoid gossip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact officials who are free today; you can then handle certain matters in a leisurely and quiet fashion. Become a more powerful person socially and pleasant times will result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A new approach is excellent and necessary now if you are to expand as you desire. A good day to make plans for a trip that is important to you later this month or next. Count the cost carefully.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you carry through in a most precise and conscientious way with whatever duties others expect of you, you gain a fine benefit. Please one you love and show you are truly devoted. It is your duty.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those lucky young people who can gain almost any wish by smiling and showing others they mean much to him or her, but this is because there is much talent here. The nature is emotional and this can lead to a happy home life and romance. The opposite type of person is best here as a mate. Fame could easily come in this lifetime, provided the right religious training is given early. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Finesse for Joy . . . Is Sad

By Oswald & James Jacoby
"Why do finessees work for everyone but me?" moaned South. "Anyone else would have found either the club ace or the heart king where it would have helped him."

South had ruffled the second club and led the nine of diamonds. He was unlucky with that play. West had thought awhile and then gone up with the ace in order to lead another club.

South ruffed and cashed the ace and king of trumps. Then he ruffed a good diamond in order to get to dummy for the heart finesse. If it had worked South would have made his contract. As it was West took his king, pulled South's last trump and set him two tricks with the last club.

RONDOUT NEIGHBORHOOD CENTER — The mayor might have been just a bit presumptuous on Thursday when he announced that he expected construction on the new Rondout Neighborhood Center to begin in April for a November completion.

In a sense, it's out of character for Koenig to crawl out on a limb like that. The mayor is presuming, we gather, that the bids will come in below the budgeted amount of $264,000.

Actually, the bids would have to come in at around $250,000 since there is a built in architect's cost of about six per cent. From what we've seen of construction in the past few years, $250,000 doesn't go very far.

The mayor, as we've said more than once in this space, has done an outstanding job of bringing this project this far. He began work on it even before he took office on Jan. 1, 1970.

At that time, the Al Brown Recreation Center was all but dead. Bids had come in late in 1968 some $80,000 over estimates. At that time, there was a sizeable amount of money committed to the project: $193,000 from the federal government; $75,000 from the Kingston Housing Authority and $96,000 from the city. At that time a complete facility was planned, including a gymnasium.

But it all went out the window when former Mayor Raymond Garraghan decided not to ask the Council for the additional money. A $25,000 architect's fee also went out the window and shortly after, the $75,000 from the housing authority.

The project lay in limbo until Koenig came along with a (virtually) one-man effort that has brought us to within two weeks of the bid opening.

It is now out of the mayor's hands or as one architect once told us, "We can come up with what we think are accurate estimates, but in the final analysis, the bidders have the last word. They're the people who have to build it."

Koenig has worked hard on this Rondout Rec Center. We hope he isn't disappointed.

THE BUS SITUATION—The aldermen seem to be handling this current "crisis" in an orderly manner. They met with Tom Wilson the owner of the buses, on Thursday night and thanks to Ed Norton, chairman of the finance committee, the press was invited.

What we saw was a quiet discussion of the problem between Wilson and the aldermen. It seemed to us that Mr. Wilson has a few bus routes making a decent buck and a lot of bus routes in the city losing quite a few dollars.

The answer seems obvious, or as Flo Ludlow, the Fourth Ward Democrat put it almost two years ago, "It's better to have half a loaf than none."

COUNCIL CAPERS—Perhaps we were mistaken, but we got the idea that not many of the aldermen knew too much about that retirement proposal they voted on Thursday night. They even had to take ten minutes out for Jack Houghtaling, the deputy city clerk, to explain it to them.

A rather dull meeting was saved by John Machione, the Second Ward Republican, who's become quite outspoken lately.

The issue was whether the Council should go on record in favor of expanding retirement rights to Korean and Vietnam veterans. The Council was meeting to approve those benefits for WW II vets.

Before we get into the juicy details of what ultimately became a heated argument between Machione and Don Quick, the Sixth Ward Democrat, it should be pointed out that the aldermen were meeting in special session.

A special session, by the Council's own rules, is allowed to deal with only the business at hand.

Ed Roux, the Ninth Ward Republican, started out by suggesting that Vietnam and Korean War vets should have the same rights as World War II vets.

A few heads nodded among the aldermen but that was about all. No word from Machione, by the way.

Ed Norton paid lip service to Roux's suggestion and so the vote went on the committee report.

Quick then took the floor and said the Council should go on record in favor of the expanded retirement rights for Viet vets and Korean vets. A few more nods. Nothing formal. And nothing from John Machione.

After the recess, Quick put his suggestion in the form of a resolution calling for letters to be sent to various state officials. Now Machione was ready. Perhaps he thought it over during the recess.

He protested to Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo that Quick's resolution was out of order according to the Council's rules on special meetings. Gallo did not agree with Machione.

Machione insisted on a legal ruling and got it, in his favor from Corporation Counsel Aaron Klein. Quick's resolution was withdrawn.

Not many of the aldermen we talked to agreed with Klein's ruling, but he's the legal brain and Gallo went along with him.

After the meeting Quick and Machione really went at it. Machione accused Quick of "playing politics" with his resolution. Quick threw the charge right back at Machione.

We'll go along with Quick on this one for two reasons: 1. Quick doesn't have to play politics. He won by 400 votes the last time out. Machione, if memory serves, won by less than 50.

2. If Machione was so concerned about the irregularity of Viet-Korea thing, he should have nailed Eddie Roux when the subject first came up.

Machione's motive for knocking down Quick's resolution we are told, was that it would have been illegal to act on the resolution at that special meeting, and it might have jeopardized any future action on the matter.

DOWN IN THE WARDS—If the Republicans in Albany hadn't opted for a September primary we'd be right in the thick of nominations right now. Still, there are some stirrings down in the wards.

Over in the Seventh Ward, we hear, Tom Davitt Sr., long time Republican committeeman, is looking for his party's nomination to run against Mike Perry, the incumbent Democrat.

Davitt, we are told, even has a campaign slogan picked out: "Make it a habit. Vote for Davitt."

Davitt may have a bit of a problem, however, getting the nomination. As we said a few weeks ago, they're lining up for a shot at Perry. The alderman was not available for comment. We're told he's in Florida on vacation.

REAL BUDDIES—Bob Gallo's back went out on him last week but his old buddy, Francis Koenig, came to the rescue. Koenig, who suffered with a bad back for years until his 1969 operation, loaned Gallo his back brace. Now there's a real pal.

South Viets Race Weather in Laos

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese field officers said today at a command post near the Laos border that the major portion of the operation in Laos will end in about two weeks but that some troops will remain behind at border posts.

Associated Press correspondent George Esper reported from Ham Nghi that Brig. Gen. Pham Van Phu, commanding general of Saigon's 1st Infantry Division, told newsmen his forces had decimated Hanoi's 559th Logistics Command, a 25,000-man force responsible for Hanoi's Ho Chi Minh trail supply network thru southern Laos.

Phu said his division has engaged four of the eight units of the logistics command operating south of Highway 9, and "we have destroyed them 50 to 80 per cent."

Esper said some of the troops that left Sepone on Friday were drawing closer to the border today, including Phu's 2nd Regiment. Its headquarters today the 3rd Regiment at Fire Support Base Delta One, 10 miles inside Laos from the frontier. The 2nd had been at the now abandoned Fire Support Base Sophia, about 24 miles inside Laos and three miles southeast of Sepone.

Field officers said current plans call for the South Vietnamese to return to the border by April because expected rain and fog will make U.S. air support virtually impossible.

The farthest into Laos the South Vietnamese went was to Sepone, a major objective 25 miles west of the border along Highway 9. The field officers said troops of the 1st Infantry Division met only light resistance today as they began the final phase of the operation.

The division's objective is to search Route 914, one of three major road networks in the Ho Chi Minh trail. The highway runs between Sepone to Muong Nong to the southeast where it joins a third key road, Highway 92. When the South Vietnamese moved into the Sepone area a week ago, North Vietnam bypassed that transshipment point with its supplies in favor of Route 914.

The entire area has been under heavy attack by U.S. B52 bombers, and earlier this week South Vietnamese advance elements reported finding nearly 500 North Vietnamese bodies and huge quantities of war supplies destroyed by one strike.

In Saigon, meanwhile, a government spokesman said the South Vietnamese will use helicopter troop lifts to keep pressure on the supply network despite Friday's pullback from the Sepone area. "We are still in the area and will rely on helicopter mobility to maintain our initiative," the spokesman said.

A staff officer agreed. "We don't need to stay at Sepone," he said. "We don't want to be in the position of sitting ducks. We want to keep mobile."

The Saigon forces claimed a major victory when they took Sepone but did not occupy it because its location in a valley makes it a natural target for artillery and ground attacks.

A North Vietnamese defector told a news conference Friday that Hanoi knew about the Lao-tian invasion long before it began and placed 30,000 troops around Sepone. But the commander of American forces supporting the South Vietnamese, Lt. Gen. James W. Sutherland Jr., told correspondent Esper only three enemy regiments are around Sepone now and they are "sort of beaten up ... not in good shape."

Spokesmen in the northern South Vietnam base camp of Quang Tri claimed today the operation in Laos has resulted in 11 North Vietnamese dead for every South Vietnamese soldier killed. Their casualty figures listed 8,008 enemy and 726 South Vietnamese killed. There have been 2,736 South Vietnamese wounded, and 158 enemy soldiers, 1,057 crew-served weapons and 3,442 individual weapons captured, they said.

Cole said he had been having a hard time getting his viewpoint across in the early days of the Senate investigation and feared being "sold down the river."

But Ribicoff said Rivers' involvement went much farther than Cole said.

Saying Rivers had vouched for Cole as an "old friend," Ribicoff pointed at Cole and declared: "Mendel Rivers did intervene in your behalf to try and stop this investigation and Mendel Rivers did not succeed."

Ribicoff said Rivers called him twice to indicate it would be better if the Cole case were dropped. The senator's aides said a Rivers assistant also made calls and at least one personal visit.

About an hour after Cole's testimony began, he brought up the name of Rep. Rivers. Cole said the congressman, who died last Dec. 28, tried in September 1969 to set up a telephone conversation with Cole at his duty station in Heidelberg, Germany.

Herbert, married and the father of one, entered the Army as a high school dropout and now has two years work completed towards a master's degree. He holds the Silver Star and Bronze Star medals and was wounded four times in Korea. He was a master sergeant before he received a direct commission in 1956.

Herbert, who served for 58 days as a battalion commander in the brigade, has pressed the accusations for almost two years.

Both Barnes, now assigned to the Pentagon, and Franklin, still stationed in Vietnam, have declined to comment on Herbert's allegations. The Pentagon says the Criminal Intelligence Division is still investigating his accusations.

Herbert said the CID investigation was begun only after he made repeated demands and threatened to take the matter into federal court.

Charge Rivers Tried to Kill PX Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ex-general has been ordered to a third day of interrogation by senators unwilling to take a S.C. chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, in other allegations that a bad memory prevented him from remembering any details.

Cole did remember how the name of William J. Crum, once a high-living slot machine and whisky salesman in Vietnam, was engraved with those of generals on a silver cigarette box presented to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff.

Westmoreland returned the box to Cole last April and demanded a hand-signed receipt for it.

Cole said the cigarette box was donated by officers in the pacification program in Vietnam when Westmoreland left his position as U.S. military commander. He said Crum intercepted Cole's Vietnamese secretary on her way to the engravers and placed his own name on the bottom of the list.

The former general, testified he knew Crum only casually, gave no explanation how Crum knew about the gift or why he would want his name on it.

About an hour after Cole's testimony began, he brought up the name of Rep. Rivers. Cole said the congressman, who died last Dec. 28, tried in September 1969 to set up a telephone conversation with Cole at his duty station in Heidelberg, Germany.

Herbert, who served for 58 days as a battalion commander in the brigade, has pressed the accusations for almost two years.

Both Barnes, now assigned to the Pentagon, and Franklin, still stationed in Vietnam, have declined to comment on Herbert's allegations. The Pentagon says the Criminal Intelligence Division is still investigating his accusations.

Herbert said the CID investigation was begun only after he made repeated demands and threatened to take the matter into federal court.

Herbert, married and the father of one, entered the Army as a high school dropout and now has two years work completed towards a master's degree. He holds the Silver Star and Bronze Star medals and was wounded four times in Korea. He was a master sergeant before he received a direct commission in 1956.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ex-general has been ordered to a third day of interrogation by senators unwilling to take a S.C. chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, in other allegations that a bad memory prevented him from remembering any details.

Cole did remember how the name of William J. Crum, once a high-living slot machine and whisky salesman in Vietnam, was engraved with those of generals on a silver cigarette box presented to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff.

Westmoreland returned the box to Cole last April and demanded a hand-signed receipt for it.

Cole said the cigarette box was donated by officers in the pacification program in Vietnam when Westmoreland left his position as U.S. military commander. He said Crum intercepted Cole's Vietnamese secretary on her way to the engravers and placed his own name on the bottom of the list.

The former general, testified he knew Crum only casually, gave no explanation how Crum knew about the gift or why he would want his name on it.

About an hour after Cole's testimony began, he brought up the name of Rep. Rivers. Cole said the congressman, who died last Dec. 28, tried in September 1969 to set up a telephone conversation with Cole at his duty station in Heidelberg, Germany.

Tempo Salutes St. Patrick's Day Via Blarney Castle, Famous Irish Landmark With Its Famous Kissing Stone, Imparting the Gift of Eloquence

Full Week's TV Listing From March 14 Thru March 20

TO BRING OUT THE GYPSY in their souls, these Americans abroad have taken a Caravan Holiday in Ireland. Ideal for families, itineraries are planned so caravans "overnight" it at special sites with all conveniences. A tourist sets his own pace — and makes his own time. (Irish International Airlines photo).

The Irish Have Done a Switch for National Holiday

Visitors to Ireland this spring are in for a surprise. The Irish have done a switch. From being a stay-at-home type holiday they have made St. Patrick's Day (March 17) the center of their Spring Festival. This year there will be parades in major cities like Dublin, Cork, Galway, Limerick — which, while not necessarily trying to rival New York, Boston and Chicago, will nonetheless have strong U.S. representation.

Irish International Airlines says 12 bands will fly over to take part in parades in Ireland. They come from New York, Connecticut and Washington, D.C.

As part of the national day attractions, the Irish have also changed around the social calendar. This year the Dublin Theatre Festival — generally a Fall event — goes on between March 8 and 20; and affords a visitor the chance to premiere some works that sooner or later end up on or off Broadway, except that in Dublin the best theatre seats start at less than three dollars!

Varied Fare

This year's program has a varied fare which includes works by Albert Camus, Shaw, Conor Cruise O'Brien's "Murderous Angels" (due for New York this Fall) and a new work by Irish writer Tom Gallagher on James Joyce.

And after the show is over you can retire to Dublin's Festival Club — focal point for celebrities and visiting firemen — to join in the general conversation, which in Ireland can rival any stage performance.

Spring in Ireland in fact is an ideal way to get in that extra winter vacation and whether you arrive in time for St. Patrick's Day or not, the Irish will roll out the green carpet.

Only these days it may not be made of shamrock, but can come in the shape of trigger savings and a wider choice of things to do for visitors.

Fares, Prices Lower

"For one thing fares are lower in spring", an Irish Airlines spokesman says. "Castle suites come at motel prices, and for the free-wheeling rover, this is a whole new range of seven-dollar a night hotels spread across the country."

Though small in size — Ireland can be tidily fitted in to a corner of New York State — the country offers a wonderful variety in scenic beauty. Best way to see this land is

The Greening of N.Y.C.: Saint Patrick's Day!

Neither rain nor snow nor wind-chill-factor (and certainly neither work nor school!) can stay over 125,000 pairs of sturdy legs from their annual 42-block march up New York City's Fifth Avenue.

You guessed it, Mrs. Calabash, it's the St. Patrick's Day Parade! It's held on the one day (March 17) when all New Yorkers — regardless of race, creed, national origin or color — turn just a little bit green.

First held in 1762, when 200 Irish-born American militiamen staged an impromptu celebration, New York's St. Patrick's Day Parade is the USA's only pre-Revolutionary War, civilian parade. It is also the country's largest non-military, non-professional parade, according to the N.Y. Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Sometimes 12 Deep!

Over 1,250,000 visitors and residents line Fifth Avenue — sometimes 12 deep! — or gaze from building windows to catch the annual spectacle, Bureau records show.

Colorful costumes, Irish airs (fervently played by over 130 bands) and the skirl of bagpipes fill the eye and ear. But the marchers who get perhaps the most enthusiastic attention are the mini-skirted colleens. Their legs may turn blue in the often-brisk weather, but their cheeks are rosy and their hearts bright green.

Parade participants include high schools, colleges, hospitals, fraternal organizations, veterans groups, representatives from all 32 Irish counties — even pretty young lassies flown over from Ireland just for the occasion. Among the 350 units are the N.Y. Police Department's Emerald Society Pipers Band and the famed Fighting 68th Regiment, formerly composed almost entirely of Irishmen.

All of the marchers are under the firm but benevolent management of such groups as the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Friends of Irish Freedom.

'Must' for Politicians

It's a respected fact of political life that the St. Patrick's Day Parade is a "must" date on the calendar of every candidate and office holder. Distinguished public figures who always participate — either as marchers or observer — are the mayor, the governor, and the state's U.S. Senators. Terence Cardinal Cooke takes the salute of the marchers from the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

The parade, which stretches 2½ miles, starts at noon. From Fifth Avenue and 44th Street, it moves north, past the 64th Street reviewing stand, to 86th Street, then east to Third Avenue, where it disbands. It lasts about six hours.

As with most celebrations in New York City, St. Patrick's Day belongs to all New Yorkers, and the Visitors Bureau notes that everyone on the streets seems to "wear the green" whether they are Irish or not. After the parade, there are numerous dances, parties

17—THE DAILY FREEMAN, MARCH 13, 1971

STEUBEN CABIN, the replica log house at Remsen, now open to the public through the courtesy of the State Historic Trust.

Cuddling up to a cozy fire starts to lose its allure toward the end of a long, hard winter. Since the urge to get out and go cannot perhaps be indulged quite yet, why not while away a few hours by planning for something different this summer.

You might decide to delve into New York State history by visiting some of the sites under the jurisdiction of the State Historic Trust.

Take the Steuben cabin in Remsen. It's a replica of the log house built by Baron Frederick von Steuben as his home after he aided the Americans in the Revolution. Baron Steuben, a profane man of fifty, arrived on these shores in a scarlet coat, with three French aides and a pampered Italian greyhound in tow. In no time flat, he became known as the "drill master of the Revolution."

Gift of 16,000 Acres

Gratefully acknowledging his services, New York State in 1786 presented him with a tract of 16,000 acres of land. The wild forest area lacked adequate routes for travel by land or water and developed slowly. Little land was cleared and few settlers came there.

Apparently, that suited the baron just fine and the log house became his summer residence. He died there on November 28, 1794. At his own request, Steuben was wrapped in a military cloak and buried in an unmarked grave. Years later, the remains were removed to a five acre "Sacred Grove" and a suitable monument was placed over his final resting place.

The replica log house at Remsen contains some of Steuben's personal possessions including his uniform and some of his furniture. Remsen is easily reached via the N.Y. State Thruway at Exit 31.

Further down the Thruway (at Exit 28), you can visit Johnson Hall, the baronial home of Sir William Johnson, built in 1763. This gentleman was Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Northern Colonies. The home was the principal center for Indian negotiations for more than a decade.

Iroquois Met There

Here the Iroquois assembled in great numbers to confer with Sir William who, speaking to them in their own tongue, presented policies of the British Crown.

When touring the pretentious building of Georgia style that is Johnson Hall, it is well to remember that the brutal French and Indian War was brought to a close with the peace treaty signed on Feb. 10, 1763. During the preceeding years, the Mohawk Valley wilderness had been ravaged by raids, and one of the men who rose to great prominence in this time was Sir William.

He had come to America from Ireland to handle an uncle's landgrant. He not only developed the land, but also became a close confidant of the Indians. His honest negotiations with the Iroquois may well have determined the course of the war. And his defeat of the French at Lake George moved a grateful monarch to knight Johnson a baronet.

A man to look ahead, not to rest, was Sir William. Just 14 days after the peace treaty was signed, he contracted with Samuel Fuller to complete the construction of his elegant mansion in the wilderness. This home would allow him to entertain more lavishly and was calculated to encourage more settlement in what had been a dangerous hinterland.

Family Furnishings

The result, of course, was Johnson Hall, still standing in Johnstown. It is much as it must have been in the day of Sir William. Imposing in its Georgian majesty, its wooden siding still simulates stone blocks. The interior of the building has a wide central hall dividing two large rooms, and, throughout, has been faithfully restored to an 18th century appearance. The interior painting has been carefully researched, and the colors were especially blended to match those used in the period. Some of the furnishings are those of Sir William and his family. Other pieces have been chosen because they would have been used in such a home at that time.

In the basement area, a delightful modern note has been added. Two dioramas have been created: one the battle of Lake George and the other of a musical evening at Johnson Hall. Visitors simply pick up wall telephones to listen to taped commentaries on the scenes.

Johnson Hall is flanked by two stone blockhouses, built for protection during the Indian uprising of 1763. The eastern blockhouse, destroyed by fire in 1868, was completely rebuilt.

Caribbean and African Dance Proving Popular

The rhythms of Caribbean and African dances are proving very popular and exciting to those studying dance with Beverly Oxley on Tuesday evenings at Lutheran Fellowship Hall in Woodstock, under sponsorship of Performing Arts of Woodstock.

And popular, too, to those taking her classes Saturday afternoons at Kingston's Black Arts Theatre.

Beverly Oxley, production assistant in Drama at Bard College, was formerly a dancer with the Pearl Primus and Percival Borde Companies in New York, Washington, D. C., and on NBC-TV.

She lived for two years in Africa, and has also performed with "Le Ballet Camerounais" in France, Belgium, and Germany, and with "Brasiliana" in Hungary, Switzerland, Spain, Morocco, and on BBC-TV, London.

Anyone interested in joining the Woodstock or Kingston group, who has missed the first few sessions, may join on a pro-rated basis, and judging from the interest shown, an additional series of classes will follow the course now in session. Mrs. Oxley emphasizes that men, as well as women, are welcome because "so many of the dances are traditionally danced by men in tribal societies that much of the movement is particularly suitable for them."

The Caribbean and African Dance class in the art colony on Tuesday evenings, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. The Lutheran Fellowship Hall is located behind Christ's Lutheran Church on Mill Hill Road, Woodstock, just three doors up the hill from Deanie's Restaurant, on the same side of the street. For further information call OR 9-2920.

The class at the Black Arts Theater is held Saturdays at 3 p.m. at its Wurts Street address.

Actor Fred Gwynne, known for his television stardom in the "Car 54" and "The Munsters" series, is the author and illustrator of "God's First World" (Harper & Row). Previously he had written and illustrated two books for juveniles and illustrated George Martin's "The Battle of the Frogs."

Lassie's Contract

You can stop worrying about the future of the "Lassie" series that CBS has been telecasting for 17 years. The Jack Wrather firm, which "owns" the collie, has a new three-year agreement with the show's longtime sponsor that extends to September, 1974.

Pursuing the Studio Model in a New Role

The art of Philip Pearlstein is the subject of a major retrospective exhibit currently at Vassar College Art Gallery.

Organized by the University of Georgia, the exhibit comprises about 80 works — paintings, drawings, prints — from Pearlstein's early, expressionist landscapes of the 1950s to a full range of his most recent painting of models in the studio.

Since the early '60s, Pearlstein has been relentlessly and intensely pursuing the subject of the studio model, not in any guise or narrative but in the nakedness and vulnerability of the model's role. This pursuit has focused on the most scrupulous investigation and record of the surface, physical evidence of the human form seen under harsh, artificial studio light. As Linda Nochlin Pommer, professor of art at Vassar, says in her introductory essay to the catalogue of this exhibition:

"He is, after all, painting models in the studio in the act of posing, not nymphs in the forest or odalisques in the Casbah, and he records this act of posing openly, in all its physical discomfort and psychic withdrawal. He is, in all honesty, deliberately taking as his content a subject which has chosen to be an object, at least for this situation. Certainly he allows his models to be what they are — human still life — far more than any other painter.... The finished image is the outcome of a dialogue between himself and his objects, or more correctly, a triologue between himself, his objects and the marks he is making. As much as Picasso's — and more single-mindedly — Pearlstein's art has been concerned with that problematic triad: the artist, his model and the image."

The exhibit will run through April 18. Gallery hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday-Saturday; and 2-5 p.m., Sunday.

A Beethoven Concerto For Philharmonic's Guest Piano Soloist

With the 200th anniversary of Ludwig van Beethoven's birthday much in the news in the past year, timely is the word for the next subscription concert of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic.

The latest concert in the season's series locally is scheduled for March 15 at the Community Theatre on Broadway; will feature pianist Robert Guralnik as guest soloist.

He will perform the Concerto No. 5, "The Emperor," by Beethoven, backed by the Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of Claude Montoux.

Similar concerts will be offered in Newburgh tonight, March 13 and Poughkeepsie March 14.

Schuller and Bartok

The programs slated will also include "Seven Studies on Themes by Paul Klee," by Gunther Schuller, and the Concerto for Orchestra by Bela Bartok.

Pianist Guralnik, a resident of the Hudson Valley area for the last decade, has become highly regarded in the world of music during that time. He has received acclaim as a virtuoso performer, chamber musician, accompanist and teacher.

The talented Guralnik has appeared as guest soloist with orchestras and in numerous recitals throughout the U.S. and Europe in the past several years. His recordings of contemporary piano literature are frequently presented on radio broadcasts, both in the Empire State area and on the west coast.

Concert-goers know him as the chairman of the piano department of the Community Music School, Spring Valley, and as a faculty member at Briarcliff College. Musician Guralnik also maintains a private studio in Mountainville.

It Takes Place in a Pajama Factory & Needs More Hands

Ninety - Miles - Off - Broadway, New Paltz amateur theatre group, recently held auditions for its spring production, "Pajama Game."

Newly elected NMOB president, Joseph Gallie, said the turnout for the slots of the big "PJ" cast was excellent. "But it's not all sewed up yet," he quipped.

Gallie said that although much casting for the hit musical is being completed, there are still some key positions to be filled. These include male dance roles, orchestra openings, and stage crew positions, among others.

Turn Out Monday

A general meeting of cast, crew, any prospective participants, and the entire NMOB membership will be held Monday evening, March 15, 7 p.m. at New Paltz Middle School.

"Pajama Game," NMOB's first musical, will be directed by James Scott of High Falls. Albert Rothstein, New Paltz music teachers, is musical director; Mrs. Kathryn Robertson, also of Paltz, will serve as stage manager.

In citing the need for "more hands," Gallie noted that the group is planning to have some particularly unusual scenery changes which effectively put stage crew members on stage within the performance. "We've got a big group working together, but there's plenty of room for more people," he said. He urged all interested individuals, whether NMOB members or not, to attend the meeting Monday night.

Quality Theatre

A leading local theatre group, NMOB's purpose is to bring together people from all "walks" of life who share an interest in theatre and to provide them an opportunity to participate in it. In addition to producing quality theatre for the community, the players will continue to promote an interest in, and appreciation of theatre.

President Gallie, sales manager with General Electric, recently took the gavel from past president Richard Leonard, in changes which effectively put structural development specialist at State University College, New Paltz. He lauded the organization's "town-gown community effort" in emphasizing the score of NMOB's participating membership. "Although 'Pajama Game' takes place in a pajama factory, this production will not be machine made, but will be nourished by many happy hands," he said. The musical will be presented April 29 and 30, and May 1.

Hotaling Featured in Cantata

Howard Hotaling will be a featured instrumentalist for the performance of the cantata "The Cross of Christ" when it is presented here at Fair Street Reformed Church, Sunday evening, March 28.

Hotaling, well known in local music circles, has a varied musical background and is a most versatile musician. Not only has he appeared as accompanist for local soloists, ensembles and large choral groups throughout the Hudson Valley, but he has also performed professionally in concert, radio and TV.

Having studied piano at an early age, he turned his talents to the field of religious music in 1951. He began work under Donald Romme and completed his studies at New Paltz under the auspices of the National Piano Foundation with Mary A. Pollard, director.

With Coach House

Area residents will remember pianist-organist Hotaling's fine work in such Coach House productions as "The King and I" and "The Sound of Music." He also played the organ accompaniment for the elaborate productions of "Elijah" and "Samson" as presented by the Ulster County Choral Society.

At present he is Minister of Music at the Reformed Church of Saugerties, and Musical Director and teacher at the Hammond Organ Studio of the Hudson Valley in Kingston.

All those interested in fine music will want to hear this outstanding musical program for the Lenten Season, directed by Percy W. Gamley.

Time Zone Series by Helioff Shown

Recent paintings in oil and acrylic by Woodstock artist A. G. Helioff will be exhibited from March 30 to April 17 at Phoenix Gallery, 939 Madison Avenue, New York City. Included in the show will be a number of new works of the "Time Zone Series" — "interpreting the transformation of color and light, which occur in a 24 hour cycle."

Earlier works in this series drew the attention of The Arts magazine in 1969. Of these particular paintings, artist Helioff says: "For me, the excitement of painting is color — the radiance of light — its fluidity crystallized by the design of the space. This is my continuing preoccupation, a limitless arena for the concern of a painter."

In Numerous Exhibits

Born in England, Helioff has worked mainly in her Mount Tremper home in the Woodstock area and in New York, with intervals in Iowa and Mexico. The artist's works have been shown in numerous exhibitions, among them: Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts; National Gallery, Washington, D.C.; Berkshire Museum; Museum of Art, Albany; Art U.S.A.; and Riverside Museum.

Awards won by Helioff include two major prizes from the Albany Museum of Art, and others from the Brooklyn Society of Artists, American Society of Contemporary Artists, and the Winsor-Newton Award.

The Helioff exhibit at the Phoenix Gallery will open with a reception from 5 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 30. Gallery hours for the run of the show (through April 17) are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

MUSHROOMS PROLIFERATE in a mountain forest in this painting by artist Lucile Stephens of New Paltz. She is currently exhibiting 58 of her paintings at the New Paltz Savings Bank through March 26. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Landscapes and Seascapes Score
In 58-Painting Show at Paltz

After opening recently with a reception and tea, a one-woman art show of the works of artist Lucile Stephens, Huguenot Street, New Paltz, is continuing at the New Paltz Savings Bank. The exhibit will run through March 26.

Miss Stephens began painting as a hobby some years ago when she retired from an active teaching career at Poughkeepsie High School. Her forte is landscapes and seascapes, and many of the 58 paintings on view in the March exhibit at the Paltz bank are the result of her travels in Europe and the U.S.

Those who see the show will also recognize many local scenes in the display. Among them are canvases of the Wallkill Valley, the Shawangunk Mountains, Mohonk, Bontecue, Huguenot Street, and the apple orchards of the area. Other scenes include those the artist painted of the Maine coast between Booth Bay and Bar Harbor, the mountains of Vermont and New Hampshire, the Taconic mountains, Connecticut lakes, and the Hoosatic River Valley of the Nutmeg state.

The public may view the show from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Fridays.

Documentary Reruns

The National Geographic Society documentary specials of the past six years, 24 one-hour shows, are being made available for reruns, either via syndication to individual stations or by network, beginning in the fall. They originated on the CBS-TV network over the past six years and have never been repeated.

Uniquely Talented Trio For a Musical Workshop

Three talented performers will be on hand for the Interaction Music Workshop this coming Monday, March 15, at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College.

The Workshop, for high school and college students, is being co-sponsored by the college and the Junior League of Kingston.

The three artists who will perform are Jonathan Abramowitz, cellist; Paul Posnak, pianist; and Yuval Waldman, violinist.

Liberation Is Aim

They are members of Interaction, a group of young artists involved in sharing their total professional and personal experience in music. Their aim is to "liberate" both the artist and audience from the "conventional strictures" of formal concert presentation.

Interaction is made up of six Juilliard graduate students, comprising two piano trios (piano, violin and cello), either of which appear "in residence" at a school or college for a period ranging from one full day to two weeks.

Abramowitz, 24, the cellist who will appear at UCCC, was born into a family of artists. He studied at Juilliard under Leonard Rose, where he presently is a doctoral candidate.

His Many honors include first prize in the Arts and Letters Competition, the Friday Morning Foundation National String Competition, and medalist in the 1967 Geneva International Competition. He made his New York debut under the auspices of the Young Concert Artists in 1967.

Won Bach Prize

Posnak, the pianist, studied first at Juilliard Preparatory Division, and at 17 won the WQXR competition and the LENA competition. His studies at Juilliard have been with Sascha Gorodnitzky and Illona Kabos, and in 1966 he was co-winner of the International J. S. Bach competition.

In 1966, Posnak was a guest at the White House at the invitation of President and Mrs. Johnson. He has performed extensively in recital, on television and radio, and as soloist with orchestras in New York and the eastern U.S.

Violinist Waldman is a native of Russia and made his first appearance over Soviet radio. He studied at Rubin Academy in Tel Aviv, with a scholarship from the American-Israel Cultural Foundation, and later at Conservatoire de Geneve, where he won the "Premier Prix de Virtuosité."

In 1965, Isaac Stern invited Waldman to come to the U.S., first to the University of Indiana, and then to Juilliard School, where he studied with Ivan Galamian. Waldman last year gave a New York debut under the auspices of the Jeunesses Musicales.

THIS TRIO of "Interaction" artists will present a Music Workshop at U-Tri-C next Monday. From the left, they're cellist Jonathan Abramowitz, pianist Paul Posnak, and violinist Yuval Waldman. Program on the Stone Ridge campus is being co-sponsored by the college and Kingston's Junior League for musically-minded high school and college students.

Greening of N.Y.C.

Along Third Avenue many of the traditional Irish bars have been transformed (by Manhattan leprechauns) into swinging singles pubs. But no matter; all bars, even in German Yorkville, turn Irish for the day. In many, even the beer is green!

Most hotels and restaurants add Irish stew, corned beef and cabbage, boxty pudding (made with potatoes), soda bread and other Auld Sod specialties to their menus. And few celebrants miss squeezing in at least one Irish Coffee somewhere along the line.

Much bigger — and far more famous — than Dublin's celebration ever was, the St. Patrick's Day Parade in New York has been called the city's first rite of spring. One explanation for the enormous popularity of the event was given by English (you should pardon the adjective) writer V.S. Pritchett:

"When you look at the history of New York you see that the New Yorker has been a marching animal. He marches to convince himself. In other cities people congregate when they feel the need to assert their public personality. In New York they do not congregate: they process."

YOU CAN'T REALLY APPRECIATE A VOLVO 164 UNTIL YOU'VE DRIVEN A MERCEDES.

"The 164 is exactly what Volvo intended — a more expansive, faster and more plush Volvo which, at over $10000 less, offers luxury sedan buyers an attractive alternative to a Mercedes."
Car & Driver

"The interior rivals the luxury of the more expensive Mercedes and has several features that go beyond the Federal safety standards."
Philadelphia Inquirer

"This is the first power steering we've encountered that is as good as Mercedes' — it's about time somebody challenged them."
Road & Track

"You have a clear choice between this sedan and a Mercedes 250. The Volvo will perform as well and is a great deal less complex to service."
World Car Guide

To test-drive a Mercedes, you can see the Yellow Pages for the dealer nearest you. Then come to us and appreciate the difference.

THE LEADER OF THE PACK — Big John Wayne (foreground) heads the cast of "Rio Lobo," his latest in a long line of innumerable westerns. Wayne's an ex-civil war officer who frees a Texas town of carpetbaggers and settles an old score with a wartime informer in the film now playing for a first run in this area at both the Rosendale Theatre and Red Hook's Lyceum.

MOVIES

I Love My Wife

Look what they've gone and done to Elliott Gould! After promoting him to superstar (and justly so on the basis of such serio-comic romps as "Getting Straight" and M-A-S-H), they're using him as a handicapper in the box office horse races.

In the full assurance that the Gould name would lure audiences to any film with which he is associated, they've come up with "I Love My Wife" — and better they should have stood in bed.

As the sometimes comedy reels currently at Saugertie's Orpheum Theatre, "Wife" is a pseudo-hip study of the agonies of an unhappily married contemporary man. But the plot often limps along like a high school play out of its depth, and Gould ambles through his role as though eager to finish up and go home.

The Ties That Bind

The money he earned must have been excellent to induce him to put his reputation on the line in so idiotic a movie. True, he shows signs of the pure Gould in his amiable confusion about love, sex and marriage. But the plot is enough to confuse any star, as well as any audience. The ties that bind any man to his pregnant wife somehow do not lend themselves well to light comedy, and those ties become even knottier if the movie-goer is a woman who's been that route and is being asked to laugh at a wife harried by both the loss of her figure and the infidelity of her spouse.

As domestic drama, "I Love My Wife" will appeal only to those capable of snickering at anything. Gould is simply a parody of all adulterers. Small wonder Brenda Vaccaro walks off with all the honors. As the wife, she just has to be an object of sympathy, but she also shows a zany comic flair that alternates with her poignantly realistic scenes. She's really much too good for this anti-feminist propaganda film.

The Twelve Chairs

Here's a runny, joyous film that's all about a wild and hilarious chase for a fortune in jewels. And it's the characters that make this movie, now showing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema, a cause for rejoicing.

The characters are crazy, lovable fools and they're portrayed by a cast of superlative clowns, including Ron Moody, the memorable Fagin of "Oliver!", Dom DeLuise, Frank Langella, and Mel Brooks, who wrote the screenplay and appears in a cameo role.

Brooks, who has already won two writing Oscars, used a 1928 novel as the basis of his film.

It's a mad tale of greed on the run from Siberia to Yalta among the comrades of Russia of the day.

Great Social Satire

Laughs abound as "Twelve Chairs" follows a three-man hunt for a cache of jewels sewn into the seat of one of 12 dining-room chairs confiscated by the new Russian government. With an excellent eye for social satire in the film, writer Brooks also delights as an actor in an all-too-brief but very funny role as an ex-serf.

Ron Moody is absolutely superlative as an aging aristocrat. Excellent, too, are Langella as a young charlatan and DeLuise as a plump and greedy priest. As these three join forces to recover the chairs, they cover the country at a mad and glorious pace, giving viewers a look at a chase that winds its way through snow, across beaches, and into a showboat, circus, museum and government offices.

Filmed in Yugoslavia, "Chairs" is a total delight, filled with comic details, hilarious dialogue, and fast-moving action.

The Statue

Look what they've gone and done to David Niven! Good, old, reliable, ultra-sophisticated but always lovable David Niven! Once he managed to latch on to

UNDERWATER FIGHT pits Sean Connery as James Bond against a knife-wielding villain in "THUNDERBALL," the Ian Fleming thriller back for a rerun at Kingston's Mayfair. In fact, it's an 007 double bill there—with "YOU ONLY LIVE TWICE" as the second rerun feature. Both spy films have been previously reviewed in TEMPO.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI
Port Ewen Auditorium had its own brand of "happies" Saturday night when B'nai B'rith Women held an old fashioned Country Carnival complete with games, contests, food, 'n fun. Game chairman, Shelia Austin, organized booths to challenge kids of all ages (from diapers, to tiedyed denims, to college degrees) PLUS their parents. There was ping pong machine that blew colored balls into air, and after watchin' them all night, it's a wonder Lou and Shelia Klein weren't dizzy, cross-eyed or at least color-blind by time evening was over.

Water pistol booth was gettin' quite a play as gamesters tried to knock over paper cups with loaded guns. Sandy and Nathan Borsky kept dispensing the H2O while keepin' out of way of misses. (Rosie of TV's Bounty could've had a heyday.) Ed Radel, with Bernice and the Aaron Kleins, couldn't stay away from golf putting booth where Bill and Sara Ohsie watched for Ben Hogan stroke-alikes.

For the strong armed, horse-shoe pitching offered challenge with John and Phyllis Hornak rewarding those who made one ringer in three tries. The noisiest booth — a favorite with kiddies — was dart game where balloons were popping every second and Linda Weiner and Thelma Weinberger kept pumping like crazy to blow up more targets.

There were guessing games with Mrs. David Gally — president of B'nai B'rith Women — in charge; spinning wheels, and for those who like to sit, card games where one could try his skill against dealers, Marvin Schildhorn and Stan Austin. Mrs. S. Bernhardt Kramer dispensed keys to fit lock of old Spanish treasure chest; only one key would open lock and inside were tickets for yummy dinner for two at Dutch Rathskeller. Burt and Sandy Feit must've lost couple inches around waist bendin' over picking up pennies pitched by some whose aim left much to be desired. Massie and Sandy Mehl awarded kosher turkey to fastest pie eater with blueberry leading as most colorful face decorator.

There's nothin' too unusual 'bout turtle racing but when Mike and Marilyn Johnson christened the slow 'n' steadies Muhammad Ali, Joe Frazier, Charlie Brown, and Hot Pants, there was added interest.

All games were played with scrip with winners doubling, tripling and quadrupling their wampum. At the finale, scrip holders bid for mystery gifts at prize auction with Muriel Weinstein providing gifts. Meanwhile across the street, Cardinal Inn had its own fun 'n' frolic. Inn recently formed "Cardinal Social Club" Group numbers 55 and at first get-together, Sharon Barber was crowned queen; Mrs. Anonymous copped award for bein' oldest member present; and Ed Horton was surprised with birthday cake along with bottle of Lestoil. (Must've been wife Elsie's subtle way of tellin' him somethin'?) Latecomers were Iris Walton, Annie Anderson and Tessie Mayone, wearin' brick-red pantsuit. Says Tessie: "If thin ones can wear 'em, so can fat ones!"

As evening crept along and warblers made ready to return to nests, one could hear chirpin' of John Doyle, Mary Connolly, and Lou Jones, accompanied by guitarist Les Williams, banjo picker Harry Litts, and mystery guitarist — name unknown — as whole flock sang Bye Bye Blackbird. (Theme song, maybe?)

Young Artists' Competition Set

The Young Artists' Competition, sponsored by Friends of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, will be held for the fifth year on March 20 and 21. With this vehicle, students from all over the world have gained recognition in their careers. The winner of the competition, besides receiving $700, is also invited to perform as soloist with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic on its subscription series.

Mrs. David Stevenson, chairman of the competition, recently announced that 27 contestants have applied. They come from all over the U.S. and from as far away as Portugal, Israel, Korea and Japan.

Mrs. Stevenson also explained the requirements for the competition: "Contestants will perform before a panel of three judges. They should provide their own accompanist, and perform the following: one complete concerto from memory, one movement of an unaccompanied selection from memory and one sonata with piano."

Among the volunteer committees working on the Young Artists' Competition is the housing committee, headed by Mrs. Kenneth Rubsam. This committee will insure that each contestant is welcome in a private home when he arrives on Friday, March 19.

There is also an award committee headed by Mrs. Harry Comer. This group will manage the different memorial awards given to the competition. Mrs. Charles Hubert is in charge of tickets.

Mrs. Robert Ferrell is chairman of the refreshments committee which will provide lunch for the contestants on Saturday, and will manage the reception following the concert at 3 p.m. on Sunday.

Partridge Records

Screen Gems' "The Partridge Family" series has not only become a popular television program on ABC this season, but there is a healthy spinoff in the recording business. The program stars Shirley Jones as a singing widow who gets into show business with her brood as a family musical group. The cast recorded "I Think I Love You" as a single, and it shot quickly into popularity, now over the 1.5 million mark. This was followed by a "Partridge" album that is rising rapidly on the charts.

an Academy Award, he let someone talk him into doing a somewhat slimy domestic-sex comedy that centers for the most part on a portion of his anatomy he would never have allowed to be mentioned in his previous bedroom comedies.

"The Statue," starring Niven as a Nobel-prize winner, is the R-rated film now showing at Kingston's Community. Too exploitative for the kiddies (it'd bore them to death even if it wasn't such explicit porn), it costars Virna Lisi as Niven's sculptress wife. Seems she makes this huge nude statue of him for the American Embassy in London. It's generally agreed the thing resembles him except for one feature.

But we'll let you take it from there. It's too much for us to get clever or cute about the sad things that happen to an Oscar winner when he's still striving for a film career after reaching the age of 60. (By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

'Juno & Paycock' At Bard Theatre

One of the finest works from the pen of playwright Sean O'Casey, "Juno and the Paycock," is being presented—starting tonight—by the Bard Theatre of Drama and Dance.

Directed by Charles Kakatsakis, the play features the following cast members:

Richard Bilangi, Christopher Claremont, Raymond Gross, Boris Kinberg, Bruce Chilton, Leslie Garrett, Amy Hass, and Ellen Parker.

The Irish imagery of "Juno" takes to stage of the Bard College Theatre at Annandale-on-Hudson tonight at 8:30 p.m. Four other performances will follow through Tuesday with stagings on March 7, 8 and 9 at 8:30 p.m., and a matinee, Sunday, March 7 at 3 p.m.

Admission is free, but all seats must be reserved. For information, call the Bard Theatre, 758-8622.

by car. Roads are excellent and you are never far from small towns and villages with good restaurants where a fillet mignon with a glass of Bordeaux comes at around $2.50; or you can pull up at a roadside singing pub — only don't get too far into the festivities or you may never leave.

For though the Irish have made almost all other concessions to modernity — their time remains their own, which is one reason the country is the best antidote to the rush and rattle of modern life.

"Ireland can be enjoyed in a few days or a few weeks, but should never be excluded from a European vacation," says an airlines executive. "It has all the modern outdoor attractions such as fishing, sailing, cruising, hunting and horse racing with enough of the past to satisfy the most nostalgic of visitors. And for visitors going to London, did you realize that when you do, you have already paid for Ireland, so why not get the benefit of it on the way."

To make it easier there's a whole series of brochures featuring special attractions of Ireland which will be sent on request by writing to Group Tour Manager-North America, Irish International Airlines, 564 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10036.

WHEN BEAUTIFUL NEWCOMER Angel Tompkins meets prosperous young doctor Elliott Gould, his "cool" disappears, and even though he's a married man, he plots to make his mistress in "I Love My Wife," the current attraction at the Orpheum in Saugerties.

RON MOODY, who soared to stardom as Fagin in "Oliver," stars as an impoverished nobleman in pursuit of a fortune in jewels in the comedy drama, "The Twelve Chairs." The film, also starring Dom DeLuise and Frank Langella, is the current attraction at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema for a first run in the area.

A Message Play Is 'Quiet Cries'

Elmwood produces annually several traveling plays dealing with the mental health problems of children and adolescents. The Rockland County Mental Health Association works closely with Elmwood to select and prepare the most appropriate plays to help educate the public in the area of mental health.

The Old Time Trapping Days

NORTH TO CREE LAKE. By A. L. Karras. Trident Press. $6.95.

Back in 1932, when the author was 18 years of age, he and his elder brother went into the wilderness of northern Saskatchewan to try their luck as trappers. They spent seven winters there, and this unusual book is a detailed record of adventure under primitive conditions.

Those were the days of the Great Depression, and the Karras brothers took a chance on making a living with the traplines, even though they were greenhorns at the business. They learned the hard way, and finally made the grade.

It was a case of holling up in winter cabins, living on the deer and moose they shot and the fish they caught, while studying the ways of the muskrats, foxes, mink, wolves, otters and weasels which they were after.

It also meant isolation in the deep snow, when a trek to the nearest neighbor's cabin might be many miles. The brothers eventually moved north to Cree Lake, where travel was by dog sled.

Karras has written a real chronicle of the old time trapping days, a fascinating yarn for everyone interested in the outdoors.

ERNESTLY SPEAKING

O-O-O-OPS DEPARTMENT

I'm used to the fact that sometimes a letter can take a month to be delivered (I suppose that's happened to most of us) but I never figured that "Ernestly Speaking" would be guilty of similar slowness in getting a message from a patron printed in the "colyum."

About a month ago, Joe Amato handed me a card mailed from Honolulu on February 9th (by Albany's own Dr. and Mrs. E. Cowie, saying: "Having a delightful trip; Temp. in the 80's every day . . . quite different from our cold weather. Will be down for dinner when we return."

I can't account for the aberration which caused the card to be stuck away in a jacket that I didn't use for a month; only excuse I can think of is that I got the good Doctor's itinerary mixed up; instead of Hawaii, I must have thought the Cowies were in Mexico . . . and you know how that "Manana" thing can get you!

ERIN GAE BRAGH

Please don't give me any arguments about that spelling . . . I got it from a Jewish friend who has excellent connections in Dublin, (how can you beat that combination?) and I'm taking his word that this is the way it's spelled in Erse, which is Gaelic for "Irish." (That much I know from cross word puzzles.) I don't know the exact meaning in Ireland, but here in Roberto's precinct it means: "The Irish Are Going To Town" on St. Patrick's Eve, Tuesday, March 16th.

Judging from the number of "party" tables some of our regulars have gotten up (the Carreras, for instance, have accounted for 32 celebrants and "The Team" has announced that it will be "Wives Night") we probably will wish we had rubber walls on Tuesday! As I've said before, we'll be serving our regular weekday dinner menu at the regular prices; the only additions will be Roberto's Shamrock Special presentation of Corned Beef and Cabbage . . . and the hats, horns and other "Green Day" novelties.

The "booked" entertainment will be by the one and only Howard Rust (who also will provide the music for Dancing); the "unprogrammed" entertainment undoubtedly will include impromptu contributions by a number of patrons. It promises to be a real "Come All Ye"; Dinner is from Five, Dancing is from 9. No reservations are needed, and if you can't come for dinner, there will be Open House in the Cocktail Lounge far into the leprechaun hours.

AMONG THOSE PLEASANT

On Saturday night were Donald E. Quick, with Lem and Betty Howard; The Frasers, of Fraser & Myers Appliances; Doris Gentile, of the Gentle Venetian Blind Service; Louise Dietz, of Caldor's, and a lot of others whom I missed because of a three-day bout with the flu. Of course, the Saturday Night presentation by the Port Ewen Ditty and Dance Society was in full swing, featuring the accustomed vocal efforts of Angie and Sharon and Fran . . . aided and abetted by Ed and

Anne Shannon . . . with interludes on "The Organ" by Veronica and Shirley (giving maestro Mark Garrison a break now and then) . . . and an extra added feature: some fancy stepping by the Griggs, Corcorans, Dempseys, Lucy Perry and the Campolans, along with Papa Joe Amato. Which is a nice way of working off some of Roberto's irresistible cuisine! I don't want to brag (too much) but I just can't help feeling set up by the fact that our Saturday Night Soirees have become so popular; as I've heard from many of our "regulars," the word is out that "Roberto's" is THE place to be on Saturday nights.

Flu or no flu, I can't omit mentioning that The Joseph Sharkins, of Kingston (that would be Joe and Rose) were fete'd at an Anniversary Dinner Party which also included Mr. and Mrs. Joe Clausi, of Port Ewen; Mr. and Mrs. Don Ferraro, of Port Ewen; Mr. and Mrs. Jim (Chink) Ferraro of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Huber, of Port Ewen; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Patrakas, of Nanuet, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Sharkin, of Port Ewen. Many happy returns . . . and Roberto will always be glad to bake a cake!

MISH AND MASH

I guess it takes time to build anything good . . . they keep telling me that Rome wasn't built in a day. It took time to get our Saturday Soirees up to their present popularity, and I now can see that time is beginning to tell in the Luncheon department. Little by little, folks who have a hankering for a special midday treat . . . whether it be in celebration of something, or in entertaining visitors, or just a yen for better food and service . . . are making Roberto's a noontime rendezvous. Naturally, Luncheon at Roberto's looks as if it costs more than the usual place . . . and that's because we don't serve the usual type of luncheon dishes. But if you want nice atmosphere, smooth service and superior cuisine, you might be interested to know that you can have Luncheon at Roberto's, including Soup, Entree and Coffee, from $1.75. Sure . . . you can eat for less . . . but you can't dine for less; as I've said before, Champagne costs more than Cream Soda . . . and you can't get a Cadillac Luncheon at a Volkswagen price. But when it comes to an IMPORTANT Luncheon, when you don't care to take chances . . . depend on Roberto's.

Ernie

P.S.—That goes for Special Parties, too; anything from 15 to 150 . . . for Luncheon, Cocktails or Dinner. If you're planning any kind of Special Party, TALK TO ME!

TINY'S TINY TALE

THE LITTLE LAMB CALLED "MUTTONHEAD" by R. Morrow

Once upon a time on a certain sheep ranch way up in the hills, there lived a little lamb called "Muttonhead". He was the whitest and fluffiest lamb that ever lived, but everyone thought he was also the dumbest. That's why they called him "Muttonhead".

He never did anything right. If the Shepherd, whose name was Tom, wanted the sheep to turn right, Muttonhead would turn left. If Tom wanted the sheep to graze in the fields, Muttonhead would run into the woods near the swamp and play hide-and-seek. When the sheep would bed down for the night, Muttonhead would stay awake until the others were fast asleep then at the top of his lungs he would go,

"Baa-aa, baa-aa, baa-aa."

And if that didn't wake all the other sheep, he would do it again, "Baa-aa, baa-aa, baa-aa."

Then he would curl up under his fluffy, white woolen coat and fall fast asleep.

One day Tom was talking to Mr. Tuttle, the owner of the ranch, and said,

"Mr. Tuttle, I just don't know what to do about Muttonhead, he can't seem to do anything right. I scold him all the time and he never pays any attention to me."

"All right, Tom", Mr. Tuttle said, "the next time I go into town, I'll take Muttonhead and sell him."

So it was settled, Muttonhead would be sold.

When Muttonhead heard from the other lambs that he would be sold, he became very, very sad. He decided to turn over a new leaf and for a day or two, he did everything he was supposed to do. This made Tom very happy and he thought that maybe Muttonhead wouldn't have to be sold after all.

But it was very hard for Muttonhead to be good for very long because he just loved getting into mischief.

One morning, a few days later, Muttonhead felt very playful and he thought to himself,

"Maybe I'll just get into a little mischief today, then tomorrow I'll start being good again."

Then he started running and jumping and chasing his friends. The more he ran and jumped and chased, the more the others laughed and ran around in circles. Soon, the lambs were scattered all over the fields.

When Tom saw what had happened, he got very mad and started shouting orders, trying to round up the scattered sheep. He finally managed to get them all together, except Muttonhead. Muttonhead had run off to his favorite hiding place in the woods, down near the swamp that was full of quicksand.

In his hiding place, Muttonhead stayed very still because he knew that Tom would come looking for him.

Pretty soon, he heard a rustling in the tall cattails at the edge of the swamp. He quietly peeked his fluffy head over the fallen log he was hiding behind. He couldn't believe what he saw! There was Mr. Tuttle's little three year old boy, Jimmy, chasing a butterfly and heading straight for the swamp.

Muttonhead didn't know what to do. If he came out of his hiding place, surely Tom would catch him and take him to town to be sold. But if he didn't do something, Jimmy might run right into the swamp. He peeked out again and saw that Jimmy was getting very, very close to the edge of the water.

Muttonhead didn't think it over any longer. He crouched down low and in one great leap, jumped completely over the log. Then he ran as fast and as hard as he could right at Jimmy. He was running so fast that when he crashed into Jimmy, he just bounced off and kept right on going through the air. When he finally landed, he found himself out in the middle of the swamp in very deep water.

At that moment, Tom was pushing his way through the cattails and saw the whole thing. He ran over and picked up Jimmy who was very frightened and crying very hard. Then he stepped very carefully into the swamp and rescued a very wet and soggy Muttonhead, who was also very frightened and baa-ing as loud as he could.

Just then, Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle came running down to the swamp looking for Jimmy.

"Muttonhead is the bravest, smartest lamb I've ever seen. He just saved Jimmy from falling into the swamp," cried Tom.

"As a reward, we'll build him a fine little barn all his own," said Mr. Tuttle, "and he can run and jump and play all day long."

"And we'll never, ever call him Muttonhead again," said Mrs. Tuttle.

So now, on a certain sheep ranch way up in the hills, you'll find the happiest little lamb in the whole world. From sunrise to sunset, he just runs and jumps and plays, and every once in a while, he even gets into a little mischief.
